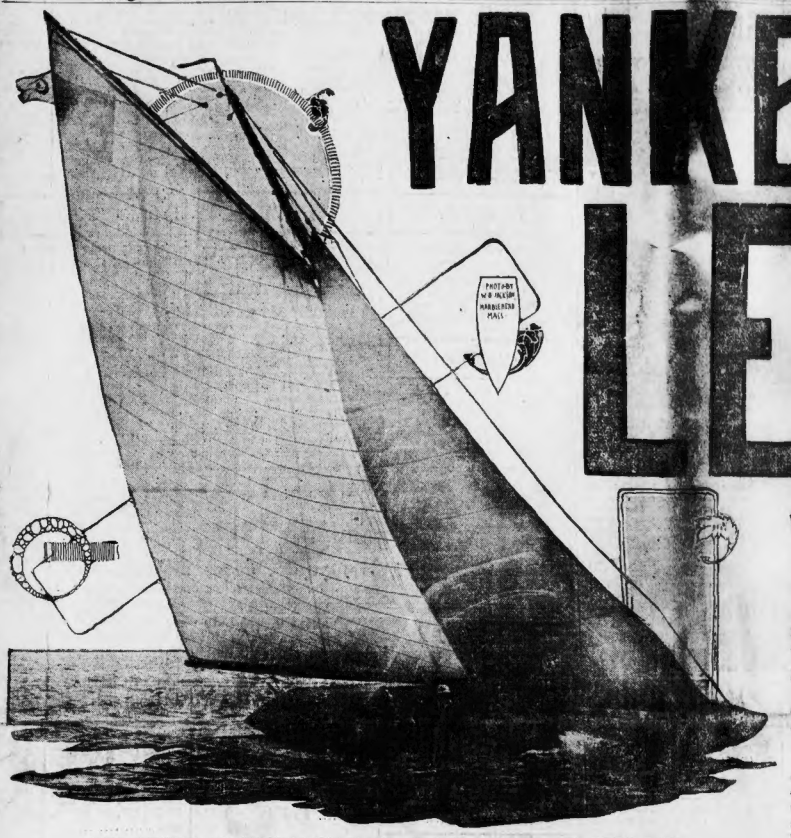
YANKEE BOATS LEADING



VIM, WINNER OF YESTERDAY'S RACE, CLOSE HAULED ON PORT TACK.

Vim and Auk Show Germans Their Heels in Third Sonder Race, but Tilly Heads Caramba to First Stake—Fresh Breeze for Contest.

BY STONE WIRELESS.

ON BOARD TUG MERCURY, Off Marblehead, Sept. 6.—Just as the third race for the Roosevelt cup was started to-day the German yacht Tilly fouled her sister boat Wannsee, and as they crossed the line the skipper of the Wannsee yelled a protest to the Regatta Committee on board the Mercury.

There was a smart twelve-knot breeze blowing from the southwest which gave promise of increasing as the day progressed, when the little Sonder boats were sent away at 11:10 o'clock. This was just the kind of wind the Germans wanted and they were confident of giving a good account of themselves.

Triangular Course To-day.

The course signalled from the committee boat was a triangular one, twice over, total distance fifteen miles; first leg to windward, southwest; second leg a reach, east by south; third leg a broad reach, north, one-half west.

Before the start the Caramba crew decided the wind was too strong for full main sail, so they tied a single reef in it. All the other boats carried full sail.

Gluckauf Crosses Too Soon.

The Gluckauf crossed starting line too soon and was obliged to return.

The Vim was the first boat across the line to weather of the Auk. The Caramba was berthed on the Vim's weather quarter. Immediately after crossing on starboard tack the Caramba backed to port. The Vim followed suit and the Auk also came about.

Tilly Fouls Wannsee.

The Tilly endeavored to come along the line before the whistle on the port tack and then came about across the line at the signal, a manoeuvre successfully used in yesterday's race. To-day, however, the Wannsee had a good gain on, and having the right of way, her skipper held the course as the Tilly came about under his bows. The outcome was that the Tilly's boom caught in the Wannsee's jibstay and fouled the latter boat into the wind, tore off the Wannsee lifting the stern of the Tilly.

In a few seconds the crew of the Tilly worked the boom clear of the jibstay, and the boats crossed the line. The clinch robbed the Wannsee of the best start of the fleet, as she was nicely berthed at the windward of the line just as the starting whistle was blowing.

Vim Holds Her Lead.

At 11:25 the Vim held her lead. All three American boats were ahead of the Germans and stood inshore toward the Nook on the port tack. The Gluckauf was well ahead of the Tilly and Wannsee.

At 11:45 the Vim had increased her lead on the Auk. The Caramba held third place.

At 11:56 the Caramba tacked to port and the Auk crossed her bows. A minute later, or 11:58, the Wannsee crossed the Gluckauf's bow and took fourth place. The Tilly stood off shore on starboard tack for a long hitch.

At 11:30 the Caramba crossed the bow of the Auk and held second place. Vim tacked on Caramba's weather bow.

The leading yachts crossed the weather mark as follows: Vim, 11:50:45; Auk, 11:52:25; Tilly, 11:55:15. The Tilly made a big gain by standing off shore so long and when she crossed in with the American boats she crossed the Caramba in to third place.

Caramba turned the weather mark at 11:54:52; Wannsee at 11:56:48, and the Gluckauf at 11:58:18.

GOVERNOR GUILD SEES THE SONDER BOATS TO-DAY

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Sept. 6.—Thursday was planned to be a gala day in the series for the Roosevelt cup, and all conditions of wind and weather had seemingly conspired to make it so. Never before has this beautiful harbor been so thronged with things that float. From the smallest cat boat to the big excursion steamers every craft is loaded down with eager spectators.

Governor Guild on Hand.

Governor Guild and his staff arrived early, and were among the most enthusiastic onlookers. Great preparations had been made for the reception of Governor Guild to-day.

The crews of all six yachts were about

Seeking Men Who Cut Rope and Let Aeronaut Fall 150 Feet;

PROBE BALLOON DEATH PLOT

BARE CHANCE NOW OF RECOVERY FOR VICTIM, WHO IS TERRIBLY INJURED.

Special to the Boston American.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 6.—Manager Walker of the Walker-Leroux Balloon Company is to-day trying to find out who cut the rope of the trapeze attached to the balloon from which Carl Smith of Brockton fell 150 feet and was nearly killed at the fair grounds here yesterday. Whatever the police do, Mr. Walker will furnish funds to discover the persons who planned the killing of Smith.

Carl Smith recovered consciousness at the Central Maine Hospital to-day. To a nurse he said:

"I am sure that the rope was cut or burned. How that happened I don't know. I examined everything before I got on the trapeze and I can't conceive how that rope weakened. I don't blame anyone. I don't accuse anyone."

Miss Ida Merrill, the young Boston girl who made the accusation at the same time with Smith yesterday afternoon when he fell 150 feet and was terribly injured, to-day examined the rope of Smith's parachute and says that it was not cut by the knife ordinarily used by the aeronaut.

CHANCE TO RECOVER.

Superintendent Smith of the hospital says that the youngs balloonist now has a chance for recovery. Smith's neck was broken in the fall. His breast bone and right wrist were also broken. So was his right leg in two places and his left ankle was fractured.

To-day, if young Smith can stand the ordeal, City Marshal Calliter will talk with him and try to wring from the young man any suspicions he may entertain as to who would have sought to kill him.

Search is still being made for the two negroes who are suspected of being hired by some one who was jealous of Carl Smith. The men were seen near the balloon before the anchor was released. And a boy saw a knife in the hands of one of the men.

5,000 AROUND BALLOON.

About 5,000 people were crowded around the balloon when it was released, and most of them were so intent upon the preparations of the aeronauts that they did not observe the movements of the two suspicious looking negroes who were hovering near the ropes on Smith's parachutes. City Marshal Calliter intends to find out from Smith whom he suspects, if he really believes his life was attempted. In the meantime, although the authorities of the Maine State fair, where the accident occurred, refuse to disclose anything, it is known that they are doing everything they can to uncover what seems to have been a dastardly plot to kill young Smith.

It is thought that some admirer of Miss Merrill may have become envious at Smith being in her company so much. Nothing more than passing friendship has ever been noticed between Miss Merrill and Smith, yet on the other hand the police believe that she has admirers, some of whom might plot the death of the young man.

PLOT OF JEALOUS RIVAL.

If Smith, who is but a boy of seventeen years, dies, his sudden ending will be the outcome of a terrible plot of a jealous rival. The police declare, who hired two negroes to cut the ropes of the trapeze, and then stood among the thousands of people who witnessed the accident and saw their victim drop to the earth from mid-air. Working on this theory the police have already started on the case, and have notified the police of other cities to be on the watch for any suspicious looking negroes and hold them.

The accident occurred when the crowd at the fair was greatest and was in full view of thousands who were watching the ascent. The body of the boy shot toward the crowd like an arrow, and the people scattered in panic instead of massing themselves and making a buffer for the boy when he struck.

When Smith struck the ground the snapping of the bones in his legs and arm could be plainly heard. He was evidently unconscious when he landed.

TRY TO SAVE BOY.

Smith was picked up unconscious and rushed to the hospital, where surgeons chover about him, striving desperately to ward off the call of death. His parents in Brockton have been notified, and his father, who has always had a dread of accidents to his favorite son, is expected in the morning.

Shortly afterward the police started a search for two colored men seen near the balloon with an open knife just as the anchor was let go. The police have information, it is said, which causes them to declare that the men were agents, and committed the shocking crime for money.

Smith, who for several weeks has been

SCHAEFER TELLS JURY OF STATE TICKET DEAL

WINCHESTER MAN AT COURT HOUSE IN ANSWER TO MORAN'S CALL.

Henry T. Schaefer of Winchester, summoned to appear to tell who the man was whom he says was approached by partisans of District Attorney John B. Moran, and told that if he (Schaefer) would contribute to the campaign fund he would be given the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor on the Moran ticket, is now before the Grand Jury.

Before being called to the jury room Mr. Schaefer paced up and down the corridor in the court house among some 100 or more men, women and children from all walks of life.—He would not take the privilege accorded witnesses in important cases of waiting their summons in the office of the District Attorney.

"I don't intend to go into Moran's office," he said. "I was summonsed to appear before the Grand Jury and here I am."

Mr. Schaefer refused to discuss his business before the Grand Jury. He said that he would soon have a statement to give out. He is going to New York later to-day, and may not return until Saturday or Sunday.

He said: "This is the first time I was ever threatened with being placed in jail, and this is also the first time that I ever summoned to appear before the Grand Jury in this way."

When District Attorney Moran had been told what Mr. Schaefer had said, he replied:

"That's right. Had I wanted to see Mr. Schaefer I would have asked him to come to me in my office."

MRS. ASTOR SERIOUSLY ILL; FEAR PNEUMONIA

DR. FLINT HURRIES FROM NEW YORK, AND OTHER NOTED DOCTORS ATTEND HER.

Mrs. William Astor, the "Mrs. Astor" of international social fame, who has been ill at the Hotel Somerset since Tuesday, is to-day reported to be delirious as a result of incipient pneumonia. Five physicians are in attendance on her.

At 11 o'clock to-day Dr. James J. Minot of No. 188 Commonwealth avenue, one of the most distinguished practitioners in the city, hushed hurriedly up to the hotel in his coupe, went inside and emerged again at 11:30. As he was hurrying across the broad sidewalk to his coupe he was questioned:

"How is Mrs. Astor, doctor?"

"See Dr. Stevens, who is in charge," replied Dr. Minot.

"Who is attending Mrs. Astor beside you and Dr. Stevens?" he was asked.

"There are several doctors there," replied Dr. Minot, jumping into his coupe, which started away rapidly down the monmouth venue.

Alarm over Mrs. Astor is increased by the hurried arrival of her private physician, Dr. Austin Flint, Jr., of New York, the noted specialist. He rushed up from Newport in an auto, arriving at the hotel at 11:15. He admitted, as he hurried to the door of the hotel, that he had arrived in answer to a telegram telling him "come at once."

That makes at least three doctors in attendance, and according to Dr. Minot, there are probably one or two more.

Dr. J. H. Stevens of No. 2561 Beacon street arrived at 10:15 to-day. Dr. Minot came at 11. Then, fifteen minutes later, Dr. Flint, the New York specialist, was whirled up across the hotel plaza in his automobile.

Dr. Flint expected to meet Mrs. Astor in Newport but her illness kept her from going there. Mrs. Astor has been in good health of late. She recently went abroad. She wired Dr. Flint in New York to come to Newport to meet her there on her return from Europe.

Dr. Flint Hurries Here.

Mrs. Astor arrived in New York, however, and started for Newport by way of Boston. When she found how hard Thursday, however, she was unable to continue her journey to Newport on account of illness. So she went to the Somerset. Then Dr. Flint, who has just gone to Newport, was cabled to hurry here. In fact, with his wife and chauffeur, he sped on here in his big touring car.

As the car arrived at the hotel Dr. Flint, covered with dust from his journey, grabbed a satchel and jumped out, hurrying toward the hotel. His wife and the chauffeur remained in the car for a few minutes.

Dr. Flint said to a reporter:

"I do not know how serious Mrs. Astor's condition is. I did not know she was really sick until I received the telegram to-day bidding me come at once. I will issue a statement later concerning her condition."

Threatened with Pneumonia.

It is said that Mrs. Astor was threatened with pneumonia, but that the efforts of the Boston physician first attending her, cliffs danger that was averted. She is being confined to a mild congestion.

The arrival to-day of Dr. Flint today, coupled with the report of a development for the worse, has aroused the gravest apprehensions.

During the first days of her illness Mrs. Astor was visited by Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, Mrs. Walter Hunnewell and other society friends.

52 ROBBERIES IN BELLEVUE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Fifty-two robberies have occurred in Bellevue Hospital in the last two nights. The thief has raised a harvest of many thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and clothing, and the Central office detectives are confronted with a weird mystery as "trying as any problem Sherlock Holmes was ever called upon to solve. On each occasion it has been the room of one of the doctors that was looted.

Not content with the big hauls which have been made successfully in the doctor's dormitories, the cunning thief has invaded the hospital wards like a prowling ghost at midnight and taken small sums from under the pillows of the sick. A score of patients have complained of losing small sums and in every instance the nurse on duty has taken oath that she did not leave the room during the hours that the robberies occurred and that no strangers entered the door.

SAY OELRICHS MADE SON HEIR

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—In the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends the body of Hermann Oelrichs was buried yesterday in Woodlawn Cemetery, the Rev. Morgan Dix of Trinity Church conducting the ceremonies.

A brief service was held at his late home, No. 1 East Fifty-seventh street, before the body was removed to Grand Central Station. The surpliced choir of Trinity Church was in attendance, opening the services with "Lead, Kindly Light," and closing with "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

It was said by an intimate friend after the funeral that Mr. Oelrichs's entire fortune, amounting to something less than $1,000,000, would revert to his fifteen-year-old son, Hermann Oelrichs, Jr. Another friend declared that since the reconciliation between Mr. Oelrichs and his wife another will had been drawn, leaving the bulk of the estate to Mrs. Oelrichs in trust for the boy. It may be found that the estate will not amount to such a large figure the first ones out of a bed and a few hours before the start was made for Halfway Rock two or three of the yachts were streaking their sails to the harbor.

The Vim Overhauled.

The Vim, which won yesterday's race, was especially active in these preliminaries. Designer Gardner expressed disappointment over yesterday's contest and said this morning that the Vim would have to carry her after mainsail was therefore overhauled this morning and a couple of battens put in the leech.

The Wanness's sail was also changed a bit, but nothing was done to make it flow better, and American yachtsmen expressed the opinion that the Germans would never win with their sails cut as flat.

To Honor the Germans.

Preparations for the grand illumination in honor of the visiting German yachtsmen occupy the attention of the townspeople this morning. It is confidently expected that the carnival will outdo anything in that line ever attempted before. There will be over 150 boats of all descriptions illuminated in various stages to-night. Special trains will be run from Boston and neighboring towns. There will also be a parade, band concerts and fireworks from every yacht club and residence facing the bar harbor. There will be loaded the German visitors at the Eastern Yacht Club to which all the prominent amateur skippers of the eastern waters have been invited.

Big Fleet Moves.

Towards 9 o'clock the immense fleet which goes out daily to witness the races began to get underway. Steam yachts, schooners, sloops, launches, motor boats and every type of craft were pressed into use. There is considerable expectancy on the part of the excursionists that a German boat will cross the line first in spite of the fact that they have been thrashed quite badly so far. There are excuses which might readily be presented by the German yachtsmen, but they are too thorough sportsmen to use them. The bad showing of the Tilly so far is undoubtedly due to the exceptionally poor suit of sails she is using. There is a bug in the leach of her mainsail that makes it look like a balloon going to windward. The Glenkarf and Vanness are considerably better off but the expected new sails have not yet arrived. There is no chance for the Tilly whatever until her new ones come.

CRITIC IS TO WED AN ASTOR

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Margaret Livingston Chanler, a great-great-granddaughter of the original John Jacob Astor, to Mr. Richard Aldrich, musical critic of the New York Times. The news of the engagement is somewhat of a surprise to many of Miss Chanler's friends, who had supposed that matrimony was the thought remote from her mind. No date has yet been mentioned for the wedding, but it will take place, early in the Autumn, probably at her country home, Rokbey, in Barrytown-on-the-Hudson.

Miss Chanler is a daughter of the late John Winthrop Chanler and a sister of Mr. John Armstrong Chanler, Mr. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler and Mr. William Astor Chanler. Her sister is the wife of Mr. John Jay Chapman.

SALARY TO CHARITY IF CHOSEN SENATOR

Former Representative James F. Creed, candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator in the sixth Suffolk district, at a rally held in Gray's Hall last night said he would give his salary if elected to the Senate to the charitable institutions in South Boston.

"I will give $100 to each of the Conferences of St. Vincent de Paul," he said, "and $100 to the Carney Hospital and $50 to the Provident Aid Society."

WINTRY WEATHER ON MOUNT WASHINGTON

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 6.—The summit of Mt. Washington appeared to be snow-capped yesterday, so heavy was the precipitation of frost. A gale which had raged for six days, blowing at times at the rate of seventy miles an hour, subsided, followed by intense cold. The mercury hovered around twenty-eight on the summit.

BOY CHARGED WITH THEFT BY RAILROAD

After looking for their man since last June, the police arrested to-day William Griffiths, seventeen years old, of No. 162 Putnam avenue, Cambridge, on a warrant charging him with the larceny of fifty-three pounds of curled hair, valued at $23.85 from the New York Central freight yards at Beacon Park, Allston.

$3,000 FIRE LOSS ON FULTON STREET

A mysterious fire in the six-story brick building at No. 40 Fulton street early today caused a loss of $3,000. The building is occupied by the Paul Manufacturing Company, perfumers. Vapors and gases arising from chemical vats endangered the firemen in their work. The lower floor is occupied by M. A. Pearson & Co., wholesale produce dealers, and this firm shared in the loss. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

BAY STATE FINANCES.

Chapin, treasurer and receiver-general, the receipts of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for August was $7,070,304.86, and funds for special purposes foot up to $10,187,277.40. On the first of the present month the State had cash on hand, $18,106,582.31.

MRS. BOWLEY-BALLOU IN FOURTH MARITAL TANGLE

MRS. BOWLEY-BALLOU-WATROUS-BROWN.

Woman who has figured in many marital romances, and is now revealed as the secret wife of a rich Philadelphian by his suit for annulment of the marriage.

Suit for Annulment Shows Woman of Many Romances Secretly Wed to Rich Philadelphian.

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Katherine S. Ballou, who startled society three years ago by an unsuccessful attempt to show that she was the widow of the late Walter W. Watrous, of this city, is causing a new sensation now by showing, with apparent success, that she has been secretly married to William Sanderson Brown, of New York and Philadelphia, for the past two years.

The news has just leaked out through legal preparations for the annulment of the marriage, which Mr. Brown says took place when he was "non compos mentis." Papers are being drawn up for Mrs. Ballou-Brown to sign, agreeing upon receiving a certain sum of money, to go to Europe, stay there and cease from troubling Mr. Brown in any way. Mr. Brown will then, it is said, sue for divorce on annulment, freeing him from Mrs. Ballou-Brown in every way.

Had Many Marital Romances.

This development adds another chapter to the marital romances of a woman now only thirty-seven years old. To give her all the names which she has borne or claimed she would be known as Mrs. Katherine S. Bowley-Fleckner-Ballou-Watrous-Brown.

She is a tall, dark-haired, dark-eyed woman, with a metropolitan air of distinction. She is invariably well groomed and smart looking.

A few seasons ago she was prominent at Saratoga, having a cottage there and being an intimate friend of William W. Watrous. Mr. Watrous maintained for her the Saratoga cottage and a place in this city. When he died, in 1903, she caused a death notice to be printed, in which she referred to herself as his widow. She was left $5,000 in his will. She sued for a widow's share. At the same time Mrs. Rachel Outman, the famous New York dressmaker, sued the estate for bills contracted by Mrs. Ballou. Mrs. Ballou lost her case, but Mrs. Outman won, as she showed that Mr. Watrous had regularly paid large bills contracted at Outman's by Mrs. Ballou.

In a Year After Watrous's Death.

Present developments show that it was only a year after Mr. Watrous's death that Mrs. Ballou became the wife of William Sanderson Brown. The latter has offices in this city and represents the big Philadelphia firm of which his father is the head. He is a member of the Pennsylvania and the Merchants' clubs, and lives in the handsome Arthur apartment house on West Fifty-sixth street. Mrs. Ballou lives in the San Jacinto annex, No. 947 Madison avenue. She is known there as Mrs. William S. Brown.

Her marriage to Mr. Brown took place on August 15, 1904. The ceremony was performed in Hoboken by Frank H. O'Keefe, justice of the peace. The record shows that the bride was formerly Katherine S. Bowley, thirty-five years old, born in San Francisco, and daughter of Samuel Bowley, and now the widow of Walter Fleckner. No mention was made of Watrous nor of the name of Ballou. The latter name, echoed from her maiden name of Bowley, was assumed by Mrs. Brown before this marriage.

Mrs. Brown alleges that Brown took her abroad, introduced her as his wife, but later neglected and failed to provide for her.

Brown says he was mentally irresponsible when the marriage took place, but that he has agreed to pay her a certain sum to leave the country and cease annoying him.

HUGHES TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Charles E. Hughes, reticent as to politics and the possibility of his nomination as the Republican candidate for Governor this Fall, has returned on the Cunard line steamer Caronia from Europe. While Mr. Hughes would not make any statement or declare his position on the gubernatorial question, he had not been ashore an hour before the news percolated through the inner circles of the Republican political machine that he would positively accept the nomination, and that in due time he would announce such to be the case.

Odell has already declared himself for Hughes, and while the latter has said that he has given assurance in no case is very attitude of reticence and disinclination to hazard an opinion upon the subject that even approximates politics is taken as a clear indication that he intends to eventually place himself in the field as a candidate.

BIG COTTON CROP.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Reports from the various districts in the cotton belt indicate that the crop for the coming season will in all probability be larger than that of last year, although it is not expected to equal the bumper yield of 1904-5.

CONFERENCE AT OYSTER BAY

OYSTER BAY, Sept. 6.—Postmaster-General Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican national committee, Representative Littauer of New York and Lyman M. Bass of Buffalo were guests of the President and it is understood that both the Congressional campaign and the situation in New York State were thoroughly discussed.

TO ASK COURTS TO CALL QUINCY AS A WITNESS

Former Mayor and James Donovan Have Ignored Municipal Lighting Committee.

WANT DEAL EXPLAINED

Should Josiah Quincy and James Donovan, who were Mayor of Boston and Superintendent of Lamps, respectively, when the street lighting contract now in force between the city and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company was renewed in 1896, refuse to appear before the joint special committee on municipal lighting at its public hearing next Monday, the courts will be resorted to to compel their attendance.

The committee is very anxious to have these gentlemen appear and tell what they know about this contract under which it is asserted the city is paying $50 a year too much for its arc lights. Quincy and Donovan, together with former Mayor Nathan Matthews, who acted for the city when the contract was arbitrated in 1904, were summoned to appear before the committee in July and explain certain things regarding bills now celebrated contracts. Matthews wrote that he was to sail for Europe on the day following the meeting, and could not come, while Quincy and Donovan absolutely ignored the summons.

Laws Give Power to Committee.

Since then the committee have been considering how they could compel the attendance of the former Mayor and superintendent of lamps and at last have found a way, under Section 8, 9 and 10 of Chapter 175 of the Revised Laws, which give full power to City Council committees to summon witnesses, and which impose the same penalties for default as in witnesses before courts.

As the Committee on Municipal Lighting has the power to summon witness but not to compel their attendance it will be necessary for the committee to apply to the courts after the witnesses have failed to respond to a summons and a warrant. This the committee is determined to do should Quincy and Donovan fail to show up Monday.

Other Witnesses Needed.

Others requested to attend Monday and enlighten the committee on the question of municipal lighting are City Engineer William Jackson, Superintendent of Lamps Dennis J. Hern, L. E. W. Kimball of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103, and Emil O. Lundin, manufacturer of arc lights. The public meeting is called for 3 o'clock in the aldermanic chamber.

Boss Cox Puts Quietus on "Nick's" Ambitions as State Delegate.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth has been defeated as a delegate to the State Republican Convention at Dayton. Friends of George B. Cox, deposed boss of Cincinnati, are said to have encompassed his defeat. Senator Foraker is reported also to have joined Cox in fighting the Roosevelt-Longworth-Taft combination in Ohio.

Some believe Longworth's turning down forecasts his defeat for re-election to Congress.

SAILOR KILLED BY FALLING TUB

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 6.—By the breaking of a hook on a chain lifting a heavy iron bucket of ashes from the engine room of the battleship Maine to-day a fireman named Grant, whose residence is given as New York, was instantly killed. The iron bucket filled with ashes struck him on the head.

Eight battleships, under command of Admiral Evans, are in port here. They will stay until September 20, and then go to Provincetown for target practice.

Except for a slight scalp wound he was unhurt.

MILLIONAIRE ATHLETE WEDS BROOKLINE GIRL IN ENGLAND

Boston and Suburban Smart Set Go Across for Nickerson-Blake Nuptials.

Groom and Bride Prominent as Disciples of the Strenuous Life.

Friends of William G. Nickerson, second son of the late Albert Nickerson, one of the builders of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, and of Miss Beatrice Blake, daughter of Mrs. F. G. Blake of No. 450 Washington street, Brookline, are to-day eagerly discussing the wedding of the young couple, which took place yesterday at Minehead, England, and for which the clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Whittimore, the best man, maid of honor, ushers and a host of friends were transported 3,000 miles to assist at the occasion.

The wedding ceremony took place at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and nearly all of those present journeyed all the way from Dedham, the home of the bridegroom, Brookline, Boston, New York and other Eastern cities by special train and ocean liner. As soon as the ceremony was over Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson started in one of the bridegroom's touring cars for a honeymoon which will include England and the greater part of France. They intend to spend much time in Paris, which Miss Ruth Nickerson, sister of the young millionaire bene'dict, is fully educated.

To Live at "Riverdale."

After at least a month of motoring Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson will return to the United States and be at home at "Riverdale," the half million dollar estate of the Nickersons in Dedham. Even now, the society set of Dedham and Brookline are eagerly anticipating the home-coming of the young couple, for they are favorites with every one whom they have ever met socially.

Albert Nickerson, eldest son of the dead railroad constructor, and present head of the family, stood sponsor for his brother and his bride at the ceremony, and Lowell Blake, the wealthy young society man of Boston, also had a conspicuous position.

Richard Nickerson, a sophomore at Cambridge, was among the guests at the richly appointed English wedding, as were Mrs. Albert Nickerson, the mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. F. G. Blake, the mother of the bride; Miss Ruth Nickerson, a sister; Mrs. Genevieve Coswell of Dedham, Boston and New York and scores of others prominent in Boston, New York and New England society. The whole wedding party, including Mr. Nickerson and Miss Blake, left America three months ago in anticipation of the happy event which occurred yesterday. Many of them will return to America by the first steamers now.

Leaders in Smart Set.

Of the same social set, united by the fact of their great wealth and each also having athletic tastes and prowess of an unusual degree, Mr. Nickerson and his bride have long been fast friends. Each naturally admired the other for skill and daring in athletics.

William G. Nickerson, who graduated from Harvard in the class of 1901, has athletics to more than one Canadian title commemorating victories on the athletic field. He plays substitute left tackle on the Harvard varsity eleven for several important contests and always acquitted himself with distinction, during his college career the young millionaire was conspicuous in athletic events.

Miss Beatrice Blake is a horsewoman of rare ability and courage. She is afraid of no mount and preferred to ride horses which men even would hesitate to ride. Years ago she established her fame as a champion horsewoman.

Both Mr. Nickerson and Miss Blake have had near death as the result of their daring as athletes. In 1900 Miss Blake was thrown and dragged for quite a distance while riding a favorite and spirited horse along the Beacon street boulevard in Brookline. She was so seriously injured at the time that her life was despaired of for some weeks. The most skilful attention was given her, and she entirely recovered.

In Realty Business.

Mr. Nickerson was equally unfortunate for he was terribly hurt in one of the beaches some years ago while riding in a Shoot-the-Chutes. Something went wrong with the mechanism and young Nickerson was found unconscious and bleeding in the midst of the wreck of his car.

He was sent to a Boston hospital where he lay for weeks in a cot, the object of every attention.

While Mr. Nickerson has always held a proud place in the gridiron, the diamond and the tennis court, he was distinguished for his ability in his studies.

When he was graduated from Harvard, Mr. Nickerson, with his brother Albert, travelled around the world. When he returned to Boston he went into the real estate business. He is now in business for himself, and has offices here and also in Dedham. Mr. Nickerson is twenty-seven years of age, and his pretty bride is four years younger.

SUSAN JACKSON, VINCENT CLUB GIRL, BRIDE TO-DAY

Society's real event to-day is the wedding of pretty Susan Jackson, the leader of the gay and brilliant army of Autocrat Vincent Club brides, and Ralph Williams, the well-known Boston clubman.

The ceremony at noon takes place in historic Trinity Chapel. Quite a rift of hydrangeas, puniculate and bay trees, and is bordered by the Gothic pillars of the interior of the church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Jackson of Beacon street, dainty and wholesome in her bridal gown of white satin and her enveloping veil of tulle, will be attended by her youthful and talented young sister Frances, in a becoming gown of pale blue silk, white taffeta hat trimmed with blue, and carrying a large bouquet of white Japanese asters. The bride's bouquet is of valley lilies.

The groom, a son of Mrs. Thomas B. Williams, is a prominent member of the Union, Athletic, Country, Tennis and Racquet Clubs and a Harvard '01 man, has chosen his best man and ushers—seven in all—from members of his class.

Miss Jackson, who will be given in marriage by her father, is a prominent figure in the world of sports as that of society, and rides as well as she dances.—(Globe).

The church will be filled with a notable gathering of titmas as the Williams and Jackson connections are both large and fashionable.

A reception and breakfast at the Jackson home will follow the ceremony and the decorative scheme there will be the same as at the church—green and white.

After an extended wedding tour abroad the young couple will reside in Boston.

F. K. FOSTER TALKS TO BRITISH LABOR MEN

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 6.—The Trades Union Congress at its session yesterday adopted a resolution in favor of an eight-hour day for all organized labor.

F. K. Foster, one of the American delegates, described the labor situation in the United States, saying that the American trade organizations were growing favorably and that if the working classes of Great Britain and America united a complete victory for the labor movement was only a question of time.

DISCARDS ADDICKS' STAR.

DOVER, Del., Sept. 6.—The joint Republican State convention yesterday renominated Hiram R. Burton for Congress and voted, 114 to 33, to do away with the Union Republican emblem of a star on the ballot, in spite of strenuous efforts by Addicks to keep it on.

BALLOON ROPES CUT DROPPED 150 FEET

employed at Wonderland, Revere Beach, Mass., came here especially for this ascension and had also been working there this season. About two weeks ago the body left the house of his uncle in Quincy, David Collins, saying nothing about where he was going or what he was going to do.

"His uncle did not know where he was going," said Mr. Smith. "Carl has always been infatuated with ballooning and parachute jumping, and has several times tried to get an engagement, but without success. He made a number of parachute drops in late years, and since then it has been little use to try and talk him out of it. Some time ago Carl went to live with his uncle. David Collins, manager of the Singer sewing machine office in Lynn, and had lately been employed on the cranes at Wonderland. His uncle had tried to induce him to quit ballooning since he had been with him, but it was no use. He made numerous ascensions, how many I do not know. He knew Professor Flowers, Stafford and others whom he frequently mentioned, but whether he was employed by them I don't know.

"A week or two ago he left and neither his uncle nor I knew where he went. We suspected he might have gone off on some balloon trip. He had a strong disposition to see things, and ballooning was in range with him."

His father and mother are heart-broken by the news of their son's injuries.

GIRL COMPANION OF YOUNG SMITH LIVES IN BOSTON

Ida Merrill, the young woman aeronaut in the balloon disaster at the Lewiston fair grounds, is a Boston girl, and her home here was at No. 54 Chambers street.

She has participated in many balloon ascensions, but this is the first one in which it was at the starting instant that the colored man edged through the thinner portion of the unfolding crowd, and slashed hastily at the ropes. As he did so Carl passed what was noticed generally, as the rope was severed. Two of the three strands were cut, leaving only one frail line of cordage to support the weight of Smith.

When more than 150 feet in the air the youth and the girl swung from the seat to the bar of the trapeze provided for each. The girl's parachute worked free and she began her descent slowly, flying to a wood lot a half-mile away.

Smith descended without the canopy to break the fall. Horror-stricken, the spectators saw his body shoot like a rocket, gaining momentum instantly, with the mass of silk and rope dangling after him.

A boy told the police: "I saw the colored man cut the line," and a fair attendant whispered at the same time that he had watched the colored man talking with a frail, dry dressed man, who passed over something indiscernible.

TRIED TO OPEN CHUTE.

The distance was too short for the parachute to open and Smith's fall was not impeded. In failing he apparently endeavored to pull the parachute, which was folded up into a compact bundle under him, so as to break the force of the fall, but if so his effort was in vain.

Miss Merrill went up about a thousand feet before she cut loose from the balloon. She also had a marvelous escape from death, as she fell directly in the path of the high tension feed wire from the big Lisbon and Dingley dam to the electric light station in the city. She fortunately saw the wires as she came down, and by swinging her body to one side succeeded in avoiding them, though the wires were but within three inches of her face.

Although Miss Merrill had sent her companion fall from her side and realized that he might even then be lying dead a hundred feet below her, she lost none of her nerve during her descent, and so soon as she reached the ground, however, she broke down completely, and had to be carried back to her apartments. The accident also had unusual effect on the other members of the troupe and few of them were able to do their turns in their customary manner after the news of the accident reached them.

SMITH HAD MANIA FOR BALLOONS, SAYS GRIEVING FATHER

BROCKTON, Sept. 6.—Carl Smith, the balloonist injured at Lewiston, Me., always had a fascination for aerial performances. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Smith, of No. 17 Spring street. Mr. Smith is a letter carrier.

The boy secured a position at Revere Beach and has been working there this summer. About two weeks ago the boy left the house of his uncle in Quincy, David Collins, saying nothing about where he was going or what he was going to do.

"His uncle did not know where he was going," said Mr. Smith. "Carl has always been infatuated with ballooning and parachute jumping, and has several times tried to get an engagement, but without success. I HAVE BEEN FOOLED; SEGAL GOT THE MONEY

Bank President Left Note Accusing Promoter When He Killed Himself.

SEGAL ARRAIGNED TO-DAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—I have been fooled. Segal got all the money. There is no one to blame but myself.

This last message of Frank S. Hipple will be presented to-day, an appalling voice from the grave against Adolph Segal, financial hypnotist, when he is arraigned for wrecking the Real Estate Trust Company.

The whisper prophecy was uttered yesterday with the treasurer of the ruined bank, William F. North, and his counsel, Marshall S. Collingwood.

It was this last message of the suicide president which caused John H. Converse, hard-headed business man and seven-term penitentiary inspector, to cry out passionately: "Segal hypnotized Frank Hipple, turned him from right to left, made of him a take!"

The message was found in Hipple's room the morning he was found stretched dead in the bath room. Frank Wharton Hipple, his son, who will testify against Segal to-morrow, found it. He kept the note a secret until to-day, but he communicated his opinion of Segal to others, and it was that opinion that influenced Mr. Converse and other directors.

The message was a mere scrawl. It was written in ink on the back of an envelope. Near the end of the last sentence the ink spread out into a pale blot, caused, quite probably, by the splash of a tear that came from the very soul of the distressed man.

Examination yesterday of the box of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the vaults of the Real Estate Trust Company, found the gems amount correct, but three bonds had been substituted for two others of equal value.

Search for the missing bonds discovered them in another bank in this city owned by Frank K. Hipple had hypothecated them for a loan, amounting to about $5,000 less than their face value. They were worth something over $20,000.

15 FILIPINOS ARE SLAIN FOR SLAVE DEALING

Relatives of Victims Take Awful Revenge Upon Traffickers in Human Flesh.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Sixteen so-called "Christian" Filipinos who were dealing in Mandays slaves in Davao district, Mindanao, Philippine Islands, were killed in a fight between relatives of the women and children stolen. Details of the tragedy have been received here. Eight Mandayas entered the barrio of Abijod, killing the slave traffickers in the hostile building they occupied. The house and its contents were then destroyed by fire.

Slave bulling is carried on by Filipinos in the southern district of Mindanao, and until the practice shall have been broken up by the authorities it is expected that reprisals of the character described will continue.

THUGS BEAT AND ROB MALDEN MAN AND WIFE

POLICE TRY TO SUPPRESS STORY, BUT ARE NOW HARD AT WORK ON CASE.

Despite the attempt of the Malden police to suppress one of the most daring hold-ups that has been recorded in that city for some time, it is to-day known that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Cox of that city were set upon by three men early Sunday morning, brutally beaten and robbed of their valuables. The story only became known by the victims telling some friends.

Lieutenant Powers of the police says that no hold-up was reported to the police. He says he received a telephone message that there was trouble at the corner of Ascutney and Salem streets, where Mr. Cox says the assault took place, and that Patrolmen Aylward and Campbell went there, but could find no one. All they found was a battered straw hat. The affair is now in the hands of Inspector Grenniert, who is hard at work upon the case.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Cox the assault occurred within a stone's throw of their home. They were on their way home from Charlestown, and just before reaching the corner of Ascutney street Cox held back to let the pipe, Mrs. Cox walking slowly on ahead. At the corner the three men suddenly confronted the woman, struck her in the face and threw her to the ground, choking her. Cox rushed to the scene, whereupon two of the men set upon him, beating him and throwing him across a low fence, almost breaking his back. Meanwhile the other man took a gold watch, pocketbook and stickpin a went from Mrs. Cox. People in the neighborhood were aroused by the screams and came to the rescue.

The highwaymen disappeared down Salem street, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Cox bleeding upon the sidewalk. One of the neighbors helped the couple to a nearby piazza, where a physician was called. Their clothing was torn, while blood flowed from wounds about their faces and necks. Mr. Cox's shirt was torn completely from his body and his pocket, which had previously contained $10, was empty.

Later they went to their home, where the physician, who arrived shortly after, found Mrs. Cox right arm dislocated, while her back and shoulders were a mass of bruises.

Extensive efforts of the police are being made by people living in the vicinity of the hold-up, inasmuch as it is stated that during the height of the fight a policeman was on a side street within a hundred yards of the scene.

Both victims have been confined to the house, and yesterday Mrs. Cox was taken to the Beacon Relief Hospital for treatment.

ELOPERS DASH TO ALTAR IN AUTO AND WED

Chauffeur of Wealthy Man Steals Away With His Sweetheart.

EAST WENHAM, Sept. 6.—"We were married at Portsmouth, N. H.," is the wording of a telegraphic message received by Daniel W. Preston yesterday. It was sent by Victor Borden, chauffeur for Philip Dexter, and Mr. Preston's daughter, Nellie.

Nellie Preston, an attractive blonde, who is just of age, had for a long time been receiving attentions from Victor Borden, chauffeur for Philip Dexter, whose palatial Summer residence at Beverly Farms is two miles away from the Preston homestead.

Borden took every opportunity to dash over to East Wenham in the machine and give Nellie a spin.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston at first objected to his visits, then realizing that obstinacy would be of no avail against the impetuous whirlwind courtship of the young people, they gave reluctant consent to the visits, stipulating that any thought of marriage should be post poned until on account of their daughter's youth.

On Tuesday Borden met Nellie and they went to Beverly. Then the automobile was sped northward, and on to Portsmouth, where they were made man and wife.

Mrs. Preston, when asked about the marriage, turned away abruptly, saying, "I don't care to answer any questions or to discuss the subject."

The general air about the Prestons is not that of parents who have just had anything but happy over the wedding.

SENATOR KNOX BACK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—United States Senator Philander C. Knox arrived yesterday on the Oceanic from Liverpool.

LITTLE GIRL SHOT; VICTIM OF VENDETTA

Neighbors Believe Assailant Friend of Italian Jailed For Attack on Child's Father.

WESTFIELD, Sept. 6.—Eight-year-old Ida Modena, daughter of Thomas Modena, an Italian farmer, was shot down while she and her little brothers and sisters were playing on the front piazza of their home at Montgomery yesterday, and now lies in the Noble Hospital here in a precarious condition.

L. O. Moore, a neighbor, says that according to the children the shot was fired from outside the house, the front door being opened a crack by the assailant, who entered and left unseen by a hole in the door. Modena's shotgun inside the house was not disturbed, and had not been for months.

It is said that Modena has an enemy who is Italian, now serving a sentence for attempting to kill him by striking him on the head from behind with an iron bar. It is the theory of the investigators that some relatives or friend of the would-be murderer took up the vendetta and sought to kill the Modena child for revenge on her father for sending his enemy to prison. The State police have been called upon to investigate the affair.

"LITTLEFIELD HAS BEATEN HIMSELF," SAYS GOMPERS

Labor Leader Declares Congressman Has Injured His Own Cause by Vituperation.

Special to the Boston American.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 6.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an interview with a representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN today, reviewed his fight in the Second Congressional District of Maine to defeat Charles E. Littlefield and declared that it was his firm conviction that the Rockland statesman would be beaten.

Mr. Gompers said that Mr. Littlefield had proven his own worst enemy by stooping to a vituperative form of campaign against him that had caused men of big own party to revolt at his action.

"No Bowery plug-ugly politician," said President Gompers, "could have resorted to viler language and abuse than Mr. Littlefield did in his Lewiston speech."

At City Hall in Lewiston Mr. Gompers will speak to-night, and he will reply to Mr. Littlefield's address. It is expected that the speech of the noted labor leader will prove the most sensational that he has delivered since he came to Maine.

Mr. Gompers was in the best of spirits when he was seen at the New DeWitt Hotel. He is enjoying Maine at this delightful season of the year, and his face has the bronze of breeze and sunshine. He gently puffed a fragrant cigar as he talked.

"Littlefield is Beaten."

"How are things looking to you, Mr. Gompers?" he was asked.

"Very bright—very bright," he replied. "I am convinced that the Hon. Charles E. Littlefield is beaten. There is no doubt of it in my mind."

"How have you reached that conclusion?"

"I will tell you. If I only had the judgment of other men by which to go I should think that their conviction might be influenced by their hope, but other men have told me to me in all walks of life. "Men whom I have met casually have told me that he not only will be defeated, but that he deserves defeat by reason of his attitude on great public questions which affect the people of Maine and the entire country. Many of these men have assured me that they did not know the hostile attitude of Mr. Littlefield to labor and the interests of working men until I came to this district and gave them the information.

"Mr. Gompers, it is said that your coming here has so stirred up the opponents of organized labor that their increased activity will nullify your work. What have you to say to that?"

Mr. Gompers smiled. He blew a puff of smoke toward the ceiling. Then he said as though he enjoyed answering the question:

Lost Himself Votes.

"They are just whistling to keep up their courage while they are passing through a dark alley. Why, I do not know any one who has driven more votes away from Mr. Littlefield than Mr. Littlefield himself. So long as Mr. Littlefield had plain sailing he appeared in the campaign as a dignified gentleman. But the moment he came face to face with an exposition of his record, he resorted to billingsgate and vituperation.

"Judging from reports published in the newspapers and from persons who heard his speech in Lewiston, no Bowery plug-ugly politician could have resorted to viler language and abuse. One may imagine his thoughts when he decided that he could not express them in one instance because it would not have been polite to the ladies who were present.

"Will there be a solid labor vote against Littlefield?

"A straw vote, I was told over the telephone, was taken in the mills at Mechanic Falls, and it was found that among the men employed there only one man was going to vote for Littlefield.

"Mr. Gompers, you have not told the people for whom to vote in your speeches."

"No, that is not my prerogative. I am here to tell the people of this section of the State the record of Charles E. Littlefield. I am here to tell them how he has misrepresenting the interests of the people of this district as well as of the people in the people in general of the country, and in addition to that to tell them of his contemptuous insults to organized labor.

OPPOSED ROOSEVELT MEASURES.

"Why the acutal attitude of the man and his enthusiasm are such that he even opposed the measures of President Roosevelt and by the President, the standard bearer of his party.

"It is said that Secretary Taft has come here to tell the people that President Roosevelt wants Mr. Littlefield back in Congress," was suggested.

"I'll be very easy," said Mr. Gompers with some feeling "to see why Taft wants Littlefield to be elected.

"Taft was a Federal Judge and was one of the first to issue one of the unfair injunctions about which we complain. Mr. Littlefield has been conspicuous in his attempts to perpetuate that abuse."

"How about Speaker Cannon?"

"Cannon? Why Cannon was asked to appoint a Committee on Labor that would give a fair representation. He was asked to change the hostile make up of that body. What did he do? Appointed a new committee he accentuated the hostility.

"Cannon formed this committee and the Judiciary Committee with one purpose and that was to make certain that no legislation would get through that was in the interest of the workingman."

"They have attacked my honesty and sincerity," continued Mr. Gompers. "But I guess that I have lived long enough in the open field for men not to mind that. I was a workingman for twenty-six years as a cigarmaker, and there are men in Lewiston who worked by side with me. We have worked with my hands and I have the interests of the working man in my heart."

"It is said that Cannon and Taft are here to stem the tide that is going to ward Littlefield," was the reply to the AT.

"I think not—it is too strong as an opinion."

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE BOOMS IN WAKEFIELD

Leaders in Hustling Town's Affairs Join New State Branch.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

In Wakefield, lately in the limelight of publicity because of the fact that it is the birthplace and boyhood home of District Attorney John B. Moran, one of the most promising branches of the Independence League has been organized, and today the movement is growing at tremendous rapid it appears that no organization or movement will be a greater factor in the forthcoming political campaign. The influence, prominence and intergrity of the men who have arrayed themselves under the banner of the Independence League in Wakefield is of such well-known quality that the success of the movement in that town is assured by the very influence of its members and particularly its officers.

Success from Start.

The most prominent merchants, professional men and political workers have entered the membership of the branch and all are earnestly working today to swell that list until it shall include every independent thinking voter in Wakefield. There is no gainsaying the great popularity that the movement has attained in Wakefield, and the success of new organization was only made possible by the excellent foundation upon which it was laid.

The organization meeting which occurred Wednesday evening was a large and enthusiastic one, and stirring addresses from the recognized leading citizens lent courage to those who have enlisted themselves with the movement and are now eager in their efforts to promulgate the principles of the Independence League throughout Wakefield and the surrounding country.

Wakefield is an especially favorable place in which the branch will prosper. The town already has municipal ownership owning the electric light, gas and water plants, and the successful management of these enterprises was largely due to the wise and thoughtful administration of the public officials.

Officers Chosen.

Upon making the organization permanent the following officers were elected: President, Thomas J. Lally; vice-president, Harry F. Peck; secretary, William H. Butler; treasurer, G. W. Killoran; executive committee, Everett A. Fisher, Charles J. Hunt and George H. Dillon.

William H. Osgood, president of the State organization, who is prominently identified in arranging for the organization of the Wakefield branch, and at the meeting delivered a strong speech on the need of branches throughout the State, and set forth briefly, yet with a care and precision that would permit no misunderstanding, the principles and objects of the Independence League. Other speakers at this meeting were D. A. Cassidy, John J. O'Hea, William H. Butler, Thomas E. Dwyer, G. W. Killoran and others.

An active campaign is planned, and permanent headquarters will be established soon. Each member is a rallying committee in himself and is pledged to bring in a new member, and public meetings, at which distinguished speakers will be present, are now being arranged.

The citizens of Wakefield are certainly alive to a movement which means nothing less than popular uprising.

PICK COLLINS TO DEFEAT SENATOR HILTON IN LOWELL

J. Henry Collins of Lowell is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the State Senate against Senator Horton H. Hilton of overtime bill and "fake" telegram fame.

The district, the seventh Middlesex senatorial, is normally Republican. It is controlled by machine Republicans. The big textile mills and the Boston & Maine railroad are powerful influences in that section. The hand of the textile lobby, one of the boldest on Beacon Hill, is often seen against textile measures of interest to Lowell and its thousands of mill workers.

It is said, simultaneous with the announcement of Mr. Collins's candidacy for the senatorial nomination, that one of the leading issues will be the famous defection of Senator Hilton on the vote for the overtime bill. This bill was killed in the State Senate last March on an unexpected vote for reconsideration.

It was admitted by the Republicans themselves that the action of the Senate and of the textile lobby at that time would probably cause much dissatisfaction even among the Republican voters.

Defeat of Overtime Bill.

The defeat of the overtime bill, at which Senator Hilton and three other members of the upper branch of the Legislature gained especial notoriety, was one of the most sensational and daring parliamentary proceedings of the entire session.

Four Senators, who had voted for the bill previously, were absent on the reconsideration vote of March 23 without even being paired. The four were Senators I. S. Cox of Lawrence, John M. Grosvenor of Swampscott; Sidney A. Hill of Stoneham and Horton H. Hilton of Lowell.

The BOSTON AMERICAN discovered that Hilton had hastily left the Senate chamber just before the reconsideration motion was offered. Hilton muttered something about not feeling well and hurried away. His vote would have saved the bill.

Then the AMERICAN found that a fake telegram had been sent Hilton, saying his wife was ill. Hilton knew the telegram was a fake.

Finally Hilton gave out a statement admitting that he had received a fake telegram. He declared he left the Senate because he had "changed his mind about the bill."

Mr. Collins has been a resident of Lowell twenty-one years. He is married and has one son. He is an electrical contractor and is head of the New England Electric & Supply Company of Lowell. He has always been identified with Republican politics.

Mr. Collins says he would like to beat Senator Hilton especially for dodging the labor measures.

TWO BABES BURN TO DEATH

Two little children, a girl and a boy, were burned to death yesterday, one in Quincy and the other in Hyde Park.

Three-year-old Martha Kjalander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tage Kjalander of No. 294 Granite street, Quincy, was playing with matches on the piazza of her home when her clothing suddenly blazed up. When the occupants of the house rushed in answer to her screams she was enveloped in flames, which her mother and four-year-old sister, Esther, tried frantically to extinguish.

John Bergfors, attracted by the cries, also ran to the child's assistance and pulled the burning clothing from her body, after which she was sent to the Quincy City Hospital, where she died.

Three and a half-year-old Harold Kenney, son of Royall E. Kenney of No. 20 Linden place, Hyde Park, was playing with other children around a bonfire which they had built in the rear of his home when his clothing caught fire, and he was terribly burned before the flames could be extinguished. He was taken to the Children's Hospital in Boston, but only to die.

TRIAL'S DELAY ANGERS THAW

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Harry Thaw was greatly annoyed when he learned that District Attorney Jerome would not fix a date for his trial for the killing of Stanford White until after election. The young prisoner at once urged Clifford W. Hartridge, his lawyer, to find some legal way to compel the prosecutor to give him a speedy hearing before a jury.

Thaw's confidence in his acquittal has grown steadily since he has been an inmate of the Tombs and he complains that it is an unwarranted hardship to keep him in duress untried.

The Supreme Court's criminal branch, in which Thaw will be tried, may not be convened until October. It is not unlikely that the trial will go over until January for the district attorney's office will try fifteen murderers before the Thaw case is reached.

TO-DAY'S SITUATION IN MAINE FIGHT.

Dr. George L. Crockett, recognized Democratic leader of Knox County, the stronghold of the Democracy, comes out for Congressman Littlefield (Republican) and opposes the Democratic candidate, Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, asserts that Littlefield will be overwhelmed at the polls.

Speaker Joseph Cannon, working in Maine for Littlefield, says that the campaign in behalf of the Republican Congressman is with the hearty approval and co-operation of President Roosevelt.

Hon. Cyrus W. Davis, Democratic candidate for Governor, scores the Republican party for ignoring the open selling of rum in the largest cities in the State while they are attacking the Democrats for "affiliation with the Boston rum trust."

The fight for and against Littlefield is being waged in the Third District as no political battle was ever waged before.

Our announcement brought thousands of applications for sample pages and full particulars, and the demand became so great that all available sets of the books were soon exhausted. On acccount of our great advertising and distributing facilities, we secured renewals of our contracts with the manufacturers and continued the plan of shipping sets direct from the factory to our subscribers. The phenomenal result has been that

No other Encyclopaedia has given Ten Thousand Dollars for a single article or Six Hundred Dollars a Page for written matter. Actress Wants to Adopt Midget Tesler Of Infant Incubator at Wonderland

Miss Bessie Barriscale of "Cape Cod Folks" Company Asks Parents for Little One.

Inspired with love for tiny Miss Helen Tesler, whose advent into this vale of tears and subsequent removal to a little glass house in the Infant Incubator Institute has been duly chronicled in the BOSTON AMERICAN, Miss Bessie Barriscale, one of the prominent players in the "Cape Cod Folks" company, now filling an engagement at the Boston Theatre, has asked permission to adopt the infant, who is perhaps better known to the readers of this newspaper as "Midget Tesler." Miss Barriscale paid a visit to Wonderland Tuesday afternoon and in the course of her inspection of the various attractions in the electric city was a guest of the management at the incubator institute. Upon seeing "Midget" Tesler, she was very much engaged with the tiny mite and sat for a number of photographs with the infant.

Being very much charmed with little Helen Tesler, Miss Barriscale proceeded upon Dr. Egan, the head of the institute, to intercede with the infant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tesler of Cambridge, in order that the actress might legally adopt the child. This Dr. Egan has done and Miss Barriscale awaits the decision of the young parents eagerly hoping that they will consent to allow her to have the little one.

Midget Has Bank Account.

"Midget" Tesler, at birth, was the smallest baby in the world, weighing but a few ounces over one pound. Soon after birth she was hurried to the Infant Incubator Institute at Wonderland, where she has since remained in one of the incubators. A special nurse was assigned to care for her, and the baby has gotten on famously. Already she has a bank account, for Miss Barriscale left a twenty dollar gold piece with the Institute attendants, with instructions that an account be opened with a Boston bank.

All interest at Wonderland centres upon the infant incubators to-day, for the convention of Institute graduates is being held, and about thirty youngsters, whose ages vary from two or three months to as many years, are in attendance. Their mothers will be entertained at the Institute by Dr. Egan and his staff and this afternoon a banquet will be served. An interesting talk on "The Care, Management and Observance of Hygienic Law in the Case of Infants," will be delivered later and as a conclusion the babies will have their pictures taken. Similar conventions have been held in the Institutes at the big expositions including Buffalo, Portland, Ore., Omaha and other cities, and at one convention held at Dreamland in Coney Island this Summer, over 200 graduates of the Institute attended.

On the reception committee at the convention to-day is Dr. J. S. Morris of Revere, assisting physician of the Institute. Dr. Egan, the chief of the Institute and the nurses and assistants of the nursery and incubator rooms.

Altogether thirty cases have been received at the institute this season and, to their regret, the management has been forced to turn away about fifteen applicants during the past few weeks. Many of these came from out-of-town cities, including New Bedford, Montpelier, Vt., Manchester, N. H., and Brockton. They were not received because of the approaching close of Wonderland for the season and the consequent close of the Institute until next Spring.

CHASE ASKS $100,000 DAMAGES OF PHILLIPS

HUSBAND OF RICH SWAMPSCOTT SUICIDE ACCUSES BROTHER-IN-LAW OF SLANDER.

Interest in the famous Chase case of Swampscott was revived to-day through the filing by Dr. Horace Chase, husband of the woman whose death by gas poisoning last September caused a sensation, of his formal declaration in a suit for $100,000 damages for slander against his brother-in-law, L. H. Phillips of Swampscott. The paper was filed with the clerk of Courts of Suffolk County.

The principal allegation of the plaintiff is that his brother-in-law at the time of his sister's death intimated certain things against Dr. Chase which were published in the newspapers.

Mrs. Chase died on Sept. 14, 1905. So many theories were advanced that the police took a hand in the mystery, but the woman's death was finally attributed to suicide.

The probating of the last will of Mrs. Chase, which left her million dollar estate to Dr. Chase's son, developed into a bitter contest, and the will was set aside. But no final adjudication is still pending in the Supreme Court.

37 TYPHOID CASES IN LYNN FROM BAD MILK

16 Victims Still in Hospital—Investigation by Health Inspector Starts To-day.

LYNN, Sept. 6.—The Board of Health has decided after a thorough investigation that milk is responsible for the present epidemic of typhoid fever. An inspector of the State Board of Health will come to this city and look carefully into all conditions.

Since August 1 there have been thirty-seven cases of typhoid in this city, and at present there are sixteen cases at the Lynn Hospital, all convalescent. No report was made of these cases to the local Board of Health and in consequence it much criticism has been made.

The hospital authorities are holding an investigation to ascertain why the health authorities were not notified. It has been found, according to health board members, that out of the thirty-seven cases here, that out of the thirty-seven cases during the past month, twenty-one were customers of one milkman, and he secures his milk from Rowley.

The Lynn water is not to blame, the authorities say. For weeks analysis of the water has been made and always found in first-class condition.

SHOOTS SELF IN HEAD.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6.—Ralph W. Miller, thirty-two years old, of No. 78 Spring street, was found dead in bed with a bullet hole through his head. A revolver with one chamber empty was held in one hand and another lay by his side.

DOWD MAKES HOT CAMPAIGN FOR CONGRESS

Seeking Nomination, He Is Contesting Every Inch of the 11th District with Peters.

Ex-Senator Thomas H. Dowd of Ward 19 will be on the stump every night in the Eleventh Congressional District from now on. To-night he speaks in a number of places in the wards of the district. He says it will be a strenuous campaign for the nomination for Congress, and that he will contest every inch of the ground with ex-Senator A. J. Peters.

Mr. Dowd has declared for John B. Moran for the Democratic nomination for Governor and Mr. Peters has not. The Moran strength in the district is claimed by Mr. Dowd on account of his advocacy of the District Attorney for Governor. He disputes the claim put forward by the managers of the Peters campaign that places many elements of strength in support of Judge Baker.

Mr. Dowd says that in Ward 11 D. J. McGillicuddy and his entire faction, besides other elements, are with him. In Ward 10 he claims a strong following, in Ward 12 James H. Doyle is neutral, but his friends are for Dowd. In Ward 18 the regular committee, headed by Michael A. Daly, chairman, and the strong Owl Club, the regular Democratic organization, have indorsed Dowd. In Ward 19 all factions have indorsed for Dowd, and the regular ward committee, John F. Egan, chairman, is for him. The strong Patrick F. Donovan faction in Ward 22 has come out for Dowd.

Ward 23 is Peters's ward, but Dowd says he will carry it at the primaries. John H. Lee is neutral in Ward 23 and Dowd's friends are sanguine. The five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the Seventh District, comprising Wards 18, 19 and 22, are supporting Dowd.

With debts ranging from a few dollars or milk to thousands in other lines of trade, Oliver Rodgers and his wife Julia, of No. 6 Sacramento street, Cambridge, have filed petitions in bankruptcy in the Federal Court. Included in the schedule of debts are those of household servants, dentists, grocery men, milkmen, coal dealers and so on through the line of tradesmen, to say nothing of a score of cash loans.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers do not confine their indebtedness to one place, seven States, Illinois, Ohio, Nebraska, Missouri, New Mexico, Colorado and Massachusetts, also Canada, are represented by the following places: Cambridge, Allston, Wellesley, Revere and Brookline, Mass.; Toledo, Cincinnati, Barnesville and Ironton, O.; Lincoln, Neb.; Jacksonville, Ill.; Joplin, Mo.; Breckenridge and Denver, Col.; Guelph, University of Montreal, Can., and New York city.

Total Liabilities $79,776.

The petitioner filed show that Mr. Rodgers owes $42,986.09 and Mrs. Rodgers has debts amounting to $36,790.30. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers' combined liabilities amount to $79,776.39. The husband's only assets, outside of household goods which he claims are exempt, are $1.79. He is a salesman by occupation. His wife gives no occupation.

Mrs. Rodgers claims as assets wearing apparel amounting to $75; household furniture, $200; about 500 books and twelve pictures valued at $150. Among her interests is mentioned a one-third interest in the estate of Peter F. Berdan of Toledo, O., which claim is contested by her and its value is not certain. After judgments held on these she scarcely her assets amount to but $4.75.

The Rodgers family, who live in fine apartments now, prior to coming to Cambridge lived for some time in Jenkins. Before they removed to the East they had contracted the greater part of their bills in business in Ohio, Colorado and Nebraska. The debts of the Rodgerses here are mainly for personal accounts for household necessities, and were contracted while they lived in Brookline in 1904 and 1905.

Has Three Secured Claims.

Mr. Rodgers says that he owes taxes on property in Brookline amounting to $1640. He schedules secured claims of $22,768 and unsecured claims of $20,201.15. He claims exemption on household goods amounting to $75.

Mr. Rodgers gives three secured claims, the First National Bank of Barnesville, O., holding the largest, amounting to $16,168. This debt was contracted at Mr. Rodgers's Bred at Lincoln, Neb., in 1902, and the security which he gave was his bank stock, shares of the Little Miami Railroad stock. The First National Bank of Toledo, O., has a claim against Rodgers for $5,200, contracted at Lincoln, Neb., in 1900, and on this debt he holds 1,500 shares of stock of the Ideal Company and an interest in a certificate of the Palms Oil and Gas Company. The Lincoln Safe Deposit and Trust Company holds a $1,000 claim, secured by fifty shares of the Ironton Gas Company.

One of the unsecured claims is Thomas Tindale of Lincoln, Neb., who has a judgment for $2800. The largest of the 30 unsecured creditors is the estate of James D.

LENA ZECHLER.

GIRL, ILL, OWED WAGES BY RODGERS.

Rodgers, Toledo, O., for $9204 on cash advanced. The sum, Thomas Tindale of Lincoln, Ill., has a claim of $2,800 against Mrs. Rodgers.

Cooks Are Unpaid.

The largest creditors of Rodgers in this vicinity are A. L. K. Volkman of Boston, for school charges amounting to $5283; Lena Zeckler, Boston, wages as a cook, amounting to $380.40, and Ida Johnson, wages as cook, amounting to $260.

Mrs. Rodgers owes $5000, she says, on a second claim, $15,500 on unsecured claims, $1,270.40 on notes and bills which she avers others should pay, and $1,710.80 on accommodation papers. She has indorsed the paper given by her husband to the Barnesville and Toledo, O., National Bank, and a note of $142.80 held by the Canal Savings Bank of Denver, Col., and $1625 held by Mary Welch of Denver.

Mrs. Rodgers acknowledges that she owes Mrs. P. F. Berdan of Toledo $500 on a claim secured by a mortgage on her household goods at her Cambridge residence, and $2,081.60 without any security whatever. Miss Pamela Berdan of Toledo, she says, has an unsecured claim of $418. Mrs. Rodgers of New York is a creditor for $1,589.50, and his wife would like to collect $5,390.32, but does not know how she can. Thomas Tindale of Jacksonville, Ill., has a claim of $2,800 against Mrs. Rodgers.

Servant in Hard Straits.

Mr. Rodgers, in citing his unsecured creditors, mentions the fact that he has borrowed sums in the past few years which in the aggregate amount to $1,325.50.

Among those from whom he borrowed money without security were Miss Lena Zeckler of No. 50 Beach street, Boston, a Austria girl who has worked in the family for years, and who now is in sore straits because she cannot collect the $380.40 in wages and borrowed moneys which Rodgers acknowledges in his petition is due the girl.

It was largely through the complaint of Miss Zeckler, who retained an attorney who was sent her by friends, that the Rodgerses were driven to seek present immunity from their many creditors by an appeal to the bankruptcy court.

She had worked for the family for years, moving with them from place to place wherever Mr. Rodgers's work took him. She alleges that when she was taken ill in Cambridge that she was discouraged, and did not have enough money to keep herself or her aged mother, but had charitable neighbors come to her assistance.

WRECKED ON AZORES, HERE ON ROMANIC

The Passengers on the Ill-Fated Brooklyn Arrive on White Star Ship.

TOUR TEACHER ALSO BACK

Ten of the victims of the wreck of the steamer Brooklyn, that went on the rocks at the Azores, arrived in Boston to-day on the White Star liner Romanic.

Seven of them were Austrian immigrants, and the others were saloon passengers. They were: M. Bendelari of New York, Miss Madeline Uhler of Chicago and Miss Lydia Pfaeder of Jersey City.

The Brooklyn left Marseilles August 3, and six days later went on the rocks on the barren coast of San Miguel, Azores Islands. The Brooklyn was bound for New York and carried, beside a small first-class list, 300 immigrants, most of whom returned to France.

Returning on the Romanic were Rabbi Charles Fleischer of Cambridge, back from a three months' vacation. Thomas Minton and family of Forest Hills, Count Alberto Sandro Onofria, a Boston resident, and his son, who has been abroad two years. Dr. Ricord Brindiffi, Italian Vice Consul of Boston, accompanied by Mrs. Brindiffi, and Henry G. Ward of Liverpool, solicitor-general of the International Mercantile Marine, who comes to America on a business mission.

Miss Madeline Foppiano, a school teacher who was sent on the European tour by the BOSTON AMERICAN, also returned on the Romanic. Miss Foppiano spent three weeks in Clendia and Genoa, the home of her ancestors, and she said that she was very grateful to the BOSTON AMERICAN for giving her "the best time of her life."

The immigration authorities searched the steerage and dragged three stowaways out of life boats, where they had been secreted. Captain Anning, the commander of the Romanic, said that before sailing from Genoa he searched the steerage and put thirty stowaways ashore. The three men found to-day will be deported.

DREAMWOLD'S MANAGER OUT

George Pollard, who has for years managed Thomas W. Lawson's estate at Dreamwold, has left the employ of Mr. Lawson and has taken up the management of his own estate at Greenbush.

At the time the entire office force, including two women, also left their places.

Mr. Lawson has not selected a new superintendent as yet, and for the present his secretary, Edward McSweeney, is looking out for affairs at Dreamwold.

QUINCY SIRENS TRY TO CHARM M'NAMEE TODAY

Machine Men to Urge Cambridge Ex-Mayor to Enter Anti-Moran Fight.

DECISION STILL WITHHELD

This afternoon the Quincy septette will sing to ex-Mayor John H. H. McNamee of Cambridge that charming old ballad, entitled "Will you be our candidate?" McNamee has been thinking it over very seriously for several days, and has determined his answer to his satisfaction, but has not let very many "in on it."

The committee of seven appointed by Congressman Sullivan, under authority of the secret anti-Moran conclave at the hotel Thorndike, will meet McNamee in Sullivan's office at 3 o'clock and tell him what a fine man he is, and advise him to hustle right back to Cambridge and remove the "For Sale" sign from the front yard.

Quincy to Join in Plea.

Josiah Quincy, chairman of the State machine, who has repeatedly said that he wanted it understood that he is not "pinging" McNamee's game, will inform the Cambridge Banks that he has changed his mind, and has come to the conclusion that the name of McNamee is one for the machine element to conjure with.

Assisting Josiah in handing out the cush will be Arthur Lyman of Waltham, chairman of the State machine's executive committee; John C. Burke of Lowell, Major F. T. Shea of Fitchburg, N. J. Skerrett of Worcester, E. L. Arnauld of Lawrence and Mayor John Coughlin of Fall River.

Mr. Skerrett is the chairman of the Worcester Democratic City Committee, and he is not strongly opposed to John H. Moran. He is not a bosser of McNamee, and may have to be shown that McNamee is a stronger man to pit against Governor Guild than Moran.

"Elect" Knew McNamee's Answer.

While McNamee insists that he has given no intimation of his intention regarding the proffer of the nomination by the Quincy-Sullivan combination, it is well understood that his answer was known to Quincy and Sullivan before the meeting was called.

McNamee was not at the Thorndike office, but he was waiting in Sullivan's office to receive the news after the "leaders" returned. It is expected that nomination papers will be taken out for McNamee in a number of Boston wards to-day and filed before the time limit expires to-morrow.

MUST PAY DUTY ON IMPORTED ALTAR

A sculptured marble altar imported at Boston for the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Newburyport, has been refused admission free of duty by the board of United States general appraisers in New York.

The collector of customs at Boston assessed it at fifty per cent, ad valorem. This was protested by the importer E. Batelli.

Betting on Great Boat Race Saturday Is Now Even

HARVARD'S HARD PRACTICE OVER

PUTNEY, Eng., Sept. 6.—The Harvard crew to-day stopped hard practice for its race with Cambridge on Saturday. Only quick starts and short spurts will be practiced from now until the race and the men are taking matters easy.

Harvard's condition is ideal. Every man is fully accustomed to the weather conditions and trained to the minute.

Betting on the event is now even.

Despite the fact that many of the native votaries of the rowing game are wrapped up in the Cambridge eight, still there are a number of unbiased rowing fans here who can't see anything to the race but the Americans.

For instance, Driver, the waterman of the Oxford University crew, who has been teaching Blagden the course, and who has seen races here for more than twenty-five years, says:

Harvard Eight Resourceful.

"I like Harvard. The men row like professional scullers, and what is more, they act like them. They are cool and collected and look experienced. It strikes one that they never get rattled. If something bad happens they get together the next. They strike me as being very resourceful.

"They say Cambridge will lead at the start. Well, I'm not so sure about that. Harvard is using nine-oar oars, while Cambridge is using boys' size, and I think Harvard will win the race."

Yesterday the rival crews had but light practice. Neither eight did more than twenty minutes' work in the morning, and in the afternoon they practiced starts and short stretches, and the Harvard crew took one moderately long stretch paced by a scratch crew from the London Rowing Club.

Harvard's chief fault has been her inability to make good starts. However, to-day their work in this line was much improved. They went as high as forty strokes to the minute and at the same time kept well together.

Dense Crowds See Men Work.

There is extreme interest in the coming race. Dense crowds watch the men work on the river in their trail sprints each day. Never before has there been such interest in a contest of its kind, and the chances are that when the two crews line up for their big race Saturday the largest crowd that ever saw a water battle on the world will be on hand.

Already all available space to see the race along the water front has been sold at fortunate prices are asked by owners of houses along the course. All the available barges and boats have been entered.

J. C. Lehman, acting with Goldsmith, Captain's president, and Filley, the coach of the Harvard crew, have drawn up special agreement covering the race. Those not differ from the usual rules governing university races save as to clause 2 and 3, which provide that if any point in the race an accident shall befall to either boat, which in the opinion of the umpire is not due to the fault of no individual, and is such as will materially affect the result of the race, the umpire shall have power to restart the race on the same or another day after consultation with the captains of the crews.

There is a similar provision against interference by barge or steamer or other obstacles.

In picture Cambridge crew is seen lifting shell from water. This is the rowing combination which encounters Harvard on Saturday.

Bright Answers from Aspirants for Honors

FOLLOWING are some of the best postals received to-day in answer to the question: "Where did you meet your first sweetheart?" Many answers received to-day were inclosed in envelopes. No envelopes will be opened. Only post-cards will be considered.

OUTGREW IT, ALAS!

My first sweetheart was seven
When I was half past eight.
And we were playing marbles
When he said, "Will you wait,
And when I grow a big man
Then will you marry me?"
"If you will be a farmer,"
Said I, "I will agree."

His mother came to get him,
As it drew toward night,
But anything so precious
I'd not trust out of sight.
I hid him in the apple bag,
Beneath the spare-room bed,
And then, to keep him quiet,
Molasses candy fed.

My sweetheart is a farmer,
With wife and children three.
He seems to lead a happy life,
Though not what I'd like to see.
While I, a lone, lorn spinster,
Consider with regret
If he had not outgrown that bag
I might have had him yet.

A LITTLE LOVE TALE

IN examining a box of underwear one day I came across the name of a young lady written on the cover of the box, and on seeing this I wrote her a little love letter, which was soon answered, and as we kept up writing I soon asked her to send me a photo of herself. In return I sent her one of mine, and as we seemed quite satisfied we were soon acquainted.

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

TO clean brass rub with very fine brickdust, moistened with lemon juice. Rinse and dry, and polish with chamois leather or soft rag.

Potatoes, after boiling and straining, should be dried over the fire and well shaken. If they go to pieces in cooking they have been allowed to boil too fast.

Feather and fur boas will be wonderfully transformed if every time after brushing they are well shaken. This causes the fur to stand out and look fluffy and soft.

Hemstitching on wallpaper may be blotted out by an application of a mixture of the soft parts of mouldings clay and dragon sized in night, and brushed off with a whisk broom in the morning.

To keep cut maidenhair fern fresh do not soak it in water, but lay it in a cool place between the folds of a damp cloth. If fully grown fronds are chosen, maidenhair treated in this way will last some days.

Add a little salt, just a pinch, to the coffee before pouring on the boiling water and you will find that it greatly improves the flavor.

The best way to warm up a joint is to chop it up finely, put it in a stew pan and keep it covered closely while in the stove. By thus heating it well covered the steam will prevent the meat from becoming hard and dry, and the joint will get nicely heated in less time.

During house-cleaning time it is often found necessary to mend wall paper. Of course, if a new piece be patched on the old, faded foundation, the result is very unhappy. The right way to prepare a patch is to tear instead of cutting it, and if the old paper is faded let the patch stay in the sun until it matches the covered wall.

Gifts of that kind should never be retained after the engagement is broken.

Where the affair has never been that of friendship, and the gifts have not been of any especial intrinsic value, there is no particular reason why they should be returned. No girl should accept valuable presents from a man unless she is engaged to him.

Jewelry in any form should not be accepted. It is all right to take books, pictures or any inexpensive trifle, but it is poor taste to accept valuable gifts from any man who is not a relative or a prospective one.

It is an amusing but true fact that some girls object to returning their engagement ring after the engagement is broken.

Imagine keeping the token of an engagement when that engagement no longer exists.

Could the abuse of sentiment go further?

A girl of fine feeling would feel that she could not get rid of the ring too quickly.

Letters and photographs should also be returned or destroyed.

It is much better to keep no reminder of the broken tie.

Accepting money from a man is inexcusable, to be friend or foe. The girl who does so places herself under an insufferable obligation.

Nor should a girl ever borrow money from a man. A man cannot very well refuse to lend it, but the girl will go down in his estimation immeasurably.

The more independent a girl is in money matters the better for her.

When you wish to return a man's gifts, letters and photographs, the proper thing to do is write him a courteous note, asking him to return whatever letters and photographs he may have of yours, telling him that you will also return his.

Never write a letter to a man that you would be ashamed to have read aloud. Men are proverbially careless of letters, and there is no telling what hands your letter may fall into.

Do not be too generous with your photographs. While a man is interested in a girl he values her picture highly, but as soon as the interest wanes the picture because of no value to whatever and is allowed to lie around most carelessly.

Any sister can testify as to the value most men place upon the gifts given them by girls they do not specially care for.

Remember all that the real value of a gift lies not in the actual amount of money it costs, but in the sentiment that inspired it.

When an engagement is broken and sentiment is dead pride should prevent your from lowering it by keeping the sentimental tokens connected with your engagement.

Send back every gift, the ring included.

Pretty Girls Not Always Best Wives

A PRETTY girl, no matter what good fortune is hers in married life, seldom, if ever, thinks her lot might have been worse. Her usual conviction is that it could easily have been better.

Then, perhaps, she gets to thinking of Jack Tabs or Tom Soandso, and sighs deejectedly. With many lovers to attend her court, what wonder is it that comparison between her present position and the might-have-been's are somewhat lavidious.

Now, a plain girl gives her mind to something better. Her husband married her, not for the looks she might possess, but for her disposition. Something in her manner, or perhaps it was her very naturalness, attracted him with a passion that no pretty face could give.

He sees in her his ideal, and he worships her for her little peculiarities and tenderness. He doesn't return home from business to find a magnificent damsel and a chaotic icebox.

In short, she eases out of a hundred and the care of a house to a pretty girl is an ordeal that is trying in every body else.

It takes her some considerable time to grasp the fact that her husband married her, not for the sake of possessing a nonentity and paying dearly for it, but to have a partner who will be the jewel of his household and the love of his life. He wants her to be not needlessly extravagant, but to be economical. She is the respondent of marriage and he the responsibilities of marriage.

But what does the average pretty woman think of extravagance? It is seldom she thinks twice of the consequences before buying that upon which her heart is set, however unnecessary it is.

She always had what she required before she was married, she will say, so why go without now? Quite so. She was never denied before marriage, but it is poor logic to suppose that what was necessary then is necessary now.

A pretty girl invariably has every wish gratified, almost without stint. If she can not supply that want herself, she will speedily discover those who will. Wherefore, she is set to control a home, extravagance is to her a new word, and a bitter one to acquire. It is a unquestioned fact that pretty wives are much more expensive than those who are plain.

A plain girl's view of life is much more moderate. Her thoughts are not distracted by singling out a number of her admirers and weighing one against the other in the balance.

It may be said that this is because a plain girl has not so many admirers, but this is a mistake. A pretty girl's admirers are not always true, but those of a plain girl are invariably so.

GOOD MOUTH WASH

A VERY delightful mouth wash is made by combining one ounce of essence of white rose, one ounce of tincture of orris, one ounce of alcohol and twenty drops of oil of cinnamon. Pour a few drops in half a glass of water and rinse out the mouth thoroughly.

QUESTIONS TO ASK MYSELF

ARE my weak eyes due to sleeping opposite an uncurtained window which faces the rising sun?

Is my husband's temper, which is so much worse since our courtship days, the reflex of my own, which I certainly very seldom take much pains to control, or is it caused by ill-cooked dinners?

Are my frequent fits of annui due to my taking no interest in any one but myself or anything but my own personal comfort, which naturally narrows my outlook on life and makes me uninteresting to other people?

* * *

Is my lack of friends and invitations caused by my taking no pains to make myself agreeable to ordinary acquaintances, so that they would be glad I should become intimate with them?

Are my frequent disputes and quarrels with other girls due to the fact that I am sure that there are always two sides to a question, and several points from which any object may be viewed, and that I cannot reasonably expect every one to see from my point and be on my side.

Is my inability to make my housekeeping allowance meet the weekly expenditure due to want of care and supervision of the larder and storeroom, and to my not having learned anything of practical housekeeping before I married?

* * *

Is the extreme naughtiness of my children due to my constant threats of punishment which I never inflict, their being even a little troublesome, and to my failure to carry out such threats, even when they are really disobedient, or untruthful, or defiant?

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

"THERE was an old nurse of mine living nearby, an old gipsy woman called Hagar, and she had the key of that supposedly safe door. Little that night I stole out to her cottage, told her of the terrible crime, and together we carried the corpse by the door. We found Mr. Winter lying dead in some corner of the tower.

But though Olga Vail had been bluffing, he realized how indirectly she had implicated him in the crime by her accusation. She had roused Rosamund's suspicion of foul play. Rosamund would almost certainly institute inquiries. It might be discovered in some unforeseen way that Wynter had been at his house that night. Yes, the game was almost up.

What was best to be done? His brain seemed tired and unable to cope with the difficulty. But one thing was certain—he must fly.

Assurance Sure

But he could not resort to flight emptyhanded. And yet it would take him a little time to get money together—money belonging to the firm—at least a week. Dare he postpone his flight for a week?

In a week he could realize on certain of the firm's securities, could probably raise nearly $100,000 before he bolted.

But would it be safe to defer his flight for a week?

Philip Haggard's throbbing brain seemed to be paralyzed and inactive; he had subjected it to too great and prolonged a strain; now that the crisis was upon him the bidding; he could not focus things properly, give them their true values. And he realized that to make one false step now, after Olga Vail's accusation, might be fatal.

On his way to the station Haggard went into a saloon and ordered a glass of brandy; even that failed to rouse him. He remained in a state of dull inertia, and ordered another. The spirit seemed to quicken the sluggish activity of his mind. Yes, surely it would be safe to give himself a week to make preparations for flight. Olga Vail dared not take her story to the police, for she would be arrested. And there was no other shred of evidence, even if Rosamund believed the story.

Rosamund would of course set inquiries afoot; but since Olga Vail dared not come forward with her story, could be proved against him yet. And that other affair—the affair of Grieve—Philip Haggard had successfully buried as Ira Graves. There was nothing to connect Philip Haggard with any person known as Ira Graves.

It would be safe, he decided, to postpone flight for a week.

"Is the day's evening paper you've got there?" he asked the bartender suddenly. The account of the proceedings in the little stifled cry broke from him that made the bartender glance across the counter at him curiously. The ground seemed to be slipping away from beneath Philip Haggard's feet. The dead man's identity had been discovered!

"The deceased, who was staying at the Billington Hotel, under the name of Ira Graves, has been identified as Walter Grieve, large exporter of cotton goods of Wynter, Haggard & Co. Death was found to be due to the administration of chloral, and a verdict of wilful murder by some person unknown was returned by the jury.

The police had identified the dead man as Grieve's partner. They would come to him to make inquiries; they would learn that he had been in the office that afternoon in Grieve's company.

He decided that it would be best to make a clean breast of the matter—to communicate at once with the police before the police communicated with him. Even then he would have the power that might lead to the discovery of the guilty man.

After all, who could identify him as the man in Grieve's office that afternoon? Surely the police would not be likely to have any idea that the man who would even be confronted by any of the attendants at the music hall, who might possibly carry some dim recollection of his face.

There was no present danger, and in a week all his plans would be ready and he would bolt.

Heart-Broken

As Philip Haggard walked through the wide, crowded hall an hour later, his mind busy with his preparations for flight, the feeling came suddenly to him that it would be a relief to get away from this place—from that tower with its jarring associations. He would be glad when he was safely out of America.

He let himself in by his latchkey—a weary, broken man, who in a short hour had seen the whole of his future altered and the hope on which he had set his heart crumble to dust.

He had loved Rosamund Wynter—loved her still, though he had seen the horror in her face as she shrank from him; would love her always. Even now he would never look upon her face again. A weary, broken man, whose life was utterly wrecked, he entered.

In the hall his man West came up to him.

"There is some one waiting to see you, sir—a lady."

Is she?" he asked.

She would not give her name, sir, she said you would not know it. But she said she was very urgently, sir, on business. She is in the drawing-room. She came about half an hour ago."

TO BE CONTINUED.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

SHOULD KNOW HIS MIND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a girl eighteen years of age and have been going with a young man nine months. He treats me very well, and claims he loves me, but never mentions marriage. Once when I asked him he would never get married until his mother died. Don't you think if he cared anything for me, as he claims, he would say something about it? He is very jealous of me and does not like to see me talk to a fellow. Please advise me whether I should keep company with him. I love him very much, and would not go with any other man. Please help me, if you can.

HELPLESS.

I CERTAINLY think that by this time he should know his own mind. Probably he is not in a position to ask a girl to marry him. You are very young, and it would be no harm to wait a year or so if you are sure you care for him. However, if at the end of that time friendship has given no sign of telling you of his love I think it would be a waste of time to continue the affair.

WHAT MIGHT BE EXPECTED

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a girl about eighteen. I met a fellow on a train who, on account of scarcity of seats, sat beside me. He began to talk to me, and we talked on different subjects. Then we exchanged addresses, and he promised to write me and asked me to write him. I did not receive any letter and I did not send any. A week has now passed. I was afraid he changed his address, so I sent him a postal card asking for a reply. He seemed to be a nice fellow, and I had formed a liking for him. Please advise me what to do.

ANXIOUS.

IT is really only what might have been expected from a casual acquaintance picked up in that way. It was all right to talk and on impersonal matters, but you should not correspond with a person whom you know absolutely nothing about. How do you know what kind of a man he may be?

VALUABLE TIPS FOR MOTHERS

WHEN bathing baby place the bath on a box or stool, instead of on the floor. You will then be able to sit down while bathing the little one and will find it far more comfortable and less tiring.

Pet animals should always be properly fed and cared for, and children taught to look after their own particular pets, and on no account to neglect or ill-use them.

Children can also learn to train their pets, but should not be allowed to spoil them, so that they become a nuisance to the rest of the household.

The nursery toy cupboard often becomes very overcrowded. Some children have toys simply showered upon them and soon tire of them. Sort out a cupboard and give away a large box in the attic makes a good storehouse for these despised treasures.

Then one day when the children have been confined to the house by bad weather or some ailment, and have exhausted and tired of all their present playthings, these new-old friends make their appearance in mother's hands and joy reigns in the nursery.

This plan keeps the nursery from being overcrowded and varies the monotony.

Gifts Should Be Returned When an Engagement Ends

By Beatrice Fairfax

A QUESTION very often asked by girls is, Should they return the gifts given them by men with whom they have ceased to be on friendly terms?

The return of a gift depends largely on its value.

When a man is attentive to a girl he lavishes many gratuitous upon her in the shape of books, etc.

If he is engaged to her the gifts are more valuable, and take the form of jewelry or silver in some form.

AN OLD BEAUTY RECIPE

TAKE half a teacupful of fine oatmeal and gradually stir it into a pint of boiling water; add one double saucepan for the purpose, to prevent any possibility of burning. Let it boil until clear. Strain then strain through a cloth, boil again and once more strain. To this add enough rosewater to make it a paste and about an ounce of glycerine. This may be put away in jars and will be found very useful to rub into the skin to prevent roughness. Bottle and shake well before using.

Red Nose and Red Veins

The Cause and Cure of These Humiliating Facial Troubles.

THESE afflictions are not always an indication of drink. Digestive troubles will cause a red nose more quickly than alcohol. We examine every case thoroughly and administer treatment to remove the cause. The redness then gradually disappears. In the most severe cases, when the nose and face are filled with small veins, our scientific treatments are used with unfailing success. TUESDAY'S SHOPPING PHOTO WAS PROMPTLY IDENTIFIED

Dorchester Young Woman Is the Lucky Winner of Daily Award of $2.

The little snapshot of a woman shopper printed Tuesday was identified yesterday. Because of the holiday Monday the camera man took the photo just before the close of the stores Saturday noon.

The lucky shopper was Miss Frances A. Foster of No. 26 Blanchie street, Dorchester. "It's the most natural picture I ever had taken," she declared. In addition to the prize of $2 Miss Foster received an enlargement of the original photograph.

When the camera man gets you don't fail to call and receive the daily reward. It's yours for the asking if you are the original of the picture.

PLAYS PIANO WITH BULLETS FROM RIFLE

Colonel Bordeverry Has the Latest Novelty; Says It Is "a Cinge."

Playing a piano by means of rifle bullets is the latest novelty in amusements. Colonel Bordeverry of the French artillery, an officer of the French army reserves, is the originator of this unique performance which he says, in his pretty Franco-English, "is a per-fect cinge."

Colonel Bordeverry is appearing at Keith's this week. He stands on the first balcony with five rifles by his side. The piano is moved out to the front of the stage and he fires at tiny targets placed under the keyboard and attached to so that each target corresponds to a note.

Ping! The first note of "Cavalleria Rusticana" is sounded.

Strikes Each Note in Time.

Ping! The second note. Ping! The third note. And so on until the fifty-six notes of the first measure are struck, each in perfect time and without a break. To be sure there is not much "artistic feeling" in this method of playing the piano, and the colonel makes no attempt at "runs" or "finger exercises," but he does play the piano with rifle bullets, and there is where the novelty is.

Colonel Bordeverry is an interesting personality. He has been in America only sixteen months, and he declares that rifle shooting is very valuable training for young men.

"It makes them avoid drink, take plenty of sleep, and makes of them men of judgment," he says. "It makes of them men—patriotic men."

Won Many Championships.

The dapper little French colonel won his championship at Lucerne in competition with 40,000 sharpshooters from all over the world. His score was 87 out of a possible 100, and he made this at 300 meters. He has had hired on the grounds. In fencing he is also champion of southwestern France. He holds the 900-kilometer record on the bicycle and also the record at forty-nine kilometers for France in swimming.

In his act at Keith's he will be using forty rifles, and his wife, a remarkably pretty Frenchwoman, uses three. "I had her trained," said the colonel, "for I prefer put a bullet through se scenery or prope. A rifleist every young man to learn to shoot. It train se nerves."

TWO TEACHERS DEPOSED FOR BEING WEDDED

HOLYOKE, Sept. 6.—For being married, Mrs. Mary B. Metcalf and Mrs. William E. Webster, of the Appleton Street School, two of the oldest teachers in Holyoke, have been dismissed by the school board on the ground that they should be supported by their husbands.

Mrs. Metcalf was married to Mr. Metcalf a month ago, and Mrs. Webster was married in June.

Superintendent of Schools James J. O'Connell was instructed to turn out the teachers in question. Mrs. Metcalf was overcome by the announcement. When he entered Mrs. Webster's room he said:

"Mrs. Webster, have you resigned yet?"

"No, indeed, I have not," replied Mrs. Webster.

"I have to inform you that by the action of the board you are dismissed," said the superintendent.

"Don't you know?" retorted the superintendent. "It is because you are a married woman."

"Well, I was elected last May when I was a married woman," replied Mrs. Webster with some heat.

She continued, saying: "I have given thirty of my best years to teaching in the Holyoke schools."

Mrs. Felton, another married woman, is said to have been spared because her husband is not able to support her.

ILLNESS DELAYS SYMPHONY HEAD

As the result of an operation performed this week on Karl Muck, the first conductor of the Royal Opera House in Berlin, who was to come to this country this year as soon as successor to Wilhelm Gericke, at the head of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is ill in Germany.

Mr. Muck was to leave for Boston on Sept. 24, and if his illness should continue as serious as the latest reports from Germany indicate, this plan will probably be impossible.

Buy Suburban Real Estate—Wisely

Rapid Transit Development Has Only Begun. Great Fortunes Will Be Made During the Next Ten Years

We tell our readers NOW what we have told them before—and shall probably tell them occasionally for a long time—buy good real estate.

We do not express any opinion as to individual real estate advertisements in or out of this newspaper. We do not—and cannot—examine or verify the INDIVIDUAL statements or offers of advertisers. THE READER MUST INVESTIGATE FOR HIMSELF BEFORE SPENDING HIS MONEY.

But this we DO know:

Those of our readers who, during the current year, invest money in real estate JUDICIOUSLY will inevitably make profits beyond their wildest hopes.

Rapid transit during the next few years will make strides exceeding all that has been done—even since the invention of steam transportation.

The Borough of Manhattan, for instance, actually shows a falling off in population, while the Greater New York has grown immensely. That means that people are moving OUT TO THE SUBURBS.

Without waiting for electric railroads to be completed and operated the people are going away from the crowded city, with its excessively high rents.

Farms of to-day will soon be rows of small, comfortable homes. Intelligent voting will soon put taxes ON THE CORPORATIONS AND TAKE THEM OFF THE HOMES. That is the tendency of to-day.

No man can foresee what this revolution in transportation and taxation is to mean. FORTUNES IN REAL ESTATE WILL BE MADE BY THOSE THAT INVEST EVEN MODERATELY, if they invest judiciously.

Only a short time ago the worker WALKED TO HIS DAILY LABOR. He HAD to live next to the workshop.

Then TWO THINGS happened.

Labor unions permitted him to begin work LATER, and HORSE cars allowed him to GET TO WORK MORE QUICKLY.

After a while the steam railroad, with its commuters, replaced the horse car—and the worker moved out even farther than the HORSE car would let him move.

Now comes THE ELECTRIC CAR. It will improve upon the steam car as the latter improved upon the horse car.

Don't be deceived by the fine wording of advertisements. Look over the ground for yourself. Verify the statements. Make your investment carefully.

Follow these rules and any others that your intelligence suggests:

Buy only what you can PAY FOR AND HOLD. Buy on the instalment plan without hesitation, if you keep well WITHIN YOUR MEANS, but first ASK THE CASH PRICE, and don't pay an unreasonable price received for credit.

Keep close to the lines of rapid transit. Many an empty square mile near Boston will be EMPTY twenty years from now—if no electric road goes near there. If you have brains to guess WHERE the NEW roads will go—buy acres instead of lots.

But be slow to believe fairy stories about the NEW RAPID TRANSIT LINES built in the real estate man's MIND. Stick to the lines NOW BUILT. See how long it takes you to get there from YOUR work. Cut the time in half—for electric power WILL CUT IT IN HALF SOON, and you might as well make the money that will come from the cut.

If you have little money, buy land THAT YOU CAN LIVE ON. The country air will mean everything to your children. And the time on the train will not be wasted, if you THINK over your work, give your brain a daily hour—AND LET YOUR PROPERTY GROW AT THE SAME TIME.

Above all, remember this:

We do not recommend or guarantee ANY ADVERTISEMENT OF REAL ESTATE PRINTED IN THIS NEWSPAPER AT ANY TIME.

The most RELIABLE dealers are our advertisers. We should not knowingly admit others. But men with property for sale deceive THEMSELVES first of all. It is for YOU, THE BUYER, to investigate.

LOOK at the land. Find the price of property NEXT DOOR. Ask the agent how much he will take off the price if you will give a bond to BUILD AT ONCE. Often you can get a lot for half price that way. Have BRAINS AND CAUTION, BUT BUY REAL ESTATE.

Little Editorials from the People

LIGHT ON THE RAILROAD PASS QUESTION

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In a recent issue a Boston newspaper announced that a certain politician had been proposed as nominee for Lieutenant-Governor to run with John B. Moran. This paper lightly mentioned the fact that this man uses a railroad pass, inferring that since he paid for it in advertising there could be no question as to the justness of its possession and use.

Now, I wonder if this ought to be taken for granted without more consideration. Why should the railroad grant him a pass in payment for printing timetables instead of settling on a cash basis?

Is it that the presence in his pocket of the pass granting him the use of this particular railroad system is intended to cause the recipient to entertain a more friendly feeling for the corporation than a limited cash outlay at regular rates would engender?

Will some one who understands newspaper advertising and the value of timetable advertising to the railroads please give us a little light on the subject?

"IN HEARTY ACCORD"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

At your solicitation I write expressing my admiration and commendation of what the AMERICAN is and the work it is doing. I find myself in hearty accord with the real spirit that seems to actuate you and the thought and sentiment that pervade the many articles appearing day by day for the good of all who are privileged to read them.

I should be most happy to know you all personally, to take each by the hand, to look each in the face and hear the voice, if may-hap I might discover the hidden depth of being from which so much of the pure, the noble, the helpful in life proceeds. Accept my best wishes for the success of the work in which you are so engaged, and rest assured that the certain and sure rewards of pure and upright living, combined with faithful, persistent efforts of helpfulness for your fellows, will be yours. With best wishes for you all again, I am your friend and well wisher,

WILL THE GOVERNMENT STOP THIS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

What benefit will be the free alcohol bill to the people if the Standard Oil Company is to buy up all the manufacturers of alcohol, and this the time for the government to step in and put a stop to this.

THE TALKATIVE VS. THE SILENT MAN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I was very pleased with an article I read written by one of your contributors some time ago as to a talkative person being a brainy person. Some of the greatest minds we have are people who are unusually talkative. A silent person is often given credit for brains he has not, and I think a person may be exceedingly loquacious and still be brainy, and a silent person may be silent and be brainless.

"By their works ye shall know them," not by their garrulity or lack of speech. A silent person is seldom magnetic, while a talkative person is very much so, and I know we take more delight in the companionship of the talkative one.

MRS. EDDY RETURNS HER PAIR OF PRIZE HORSES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The rumor that the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, leader of the Christian Scientists, had a thrilling experience while driving with the prize horses which had been presented to her by Mr. L. L. Temple of Texarkana is incorrect.

Mrs. Eddy's secretary and also her driver declare in fact, Mrs. Eddy herself has told me that she has never ridden behind the new horses, that her driver tested them and decided that they were not adapted to her needs, and so informed Mrs. Eddy, whereupon she decided not to test them herself. While she appreciated Mr. Temple's kindness and accepted the beautiful horses out of courtesy to him, she had from the first been really too well satisfied with the tried and tested pair which she had been driving for two or three years to give them up for the new ones, and she gave Tattersall and Eckersall back to Mr. Temple.

The Diary of an Aeronaut

By Wex Jones

MONDAY—Worked the old man for a 40,000-bird power air car to-day. It's a beauty—250 miles an hour easy.

TUESDAY—Getting on to the curves of the Thunderbolt to-day. Tried to make the roof with a grand sweep, but missed and was over Providence before I could get the brakes on. Rather hard to steer without practice. Biffed a 250-birdpower flyabout without doing any damage. The flyabout was smashed to pieces and the driver may have been hurt as he had a drop of 600 yards. However, I didn't wait to see, as an aircycle cop was after me.

* * *

WEDNESDAY—Took Baggles out for a fly to-day, and everything went splendidly until the Thunderbolt skidded on a piece of wet cloud. Baggles went out a bit suddenly. I looked through the observation plate in the bottom and noticed a hole in the roof of a farmhouse below me. Concluded Baggles had gone to call on the farmer.

* * *

THURSDAY—Baggles did call on the farmer. Fell on the dinner table and mashed the potatoes. Accuses me of carelessness! He's a chump. Asked Dora to go for a fly this afternoon, but she said it was too soft.

* * *

FRIDAY—Dora refused again to-day, so I took Alice for a little thousand-mile trip. We flew over the garden of Dora's house with great success, and I saw her watching us out of the top window. Alice held her poodle up to look and it slipped out of her arms, falling flop! on Dora's pet Persian kitten. Alice cried and Dora cried. I tried to land in the garden and rescue the poodle, but knocked the top off a wall first time, and second time the Thunderbolt stuck in the kitchen door.

Alice cried and Dora laughed. I swore to give up the ship.

SATURDAY—Dora came out with me to-day!

The Thunderbolt was at her best, and we did 3,500 miles in no time. Coming back we ran up a cloud bank at the side of the air and the machine turned over!

I grabbed Dora, and as we fell told her how I loved her.

After dropping 1,500 feet she relented a little.

Another 1,000 feet and she sobbed that she had always loved me, and now we were g-g-going to d-d-die together.

I produced my pocket parachute and we floated gently to earth.

We landed in front of a minister's house!

The minister said he had been expecting us (the chump!), and we were married right away.

Dora has made me sell the Thunderbolt, and just when I'd learned to upset it where I wanted!

He Explains How Riches as Well as Poverty Have a Tendency to Make Cowards Out of Men

By George Bernard Shaw

RICHES have the effect of making men cowards, and poverty has the effect of making men cowards. Almost every man I know is really a coward, but women have got a sort of desperate courage left, for no woman can get so entirely detached from the facts of life as a man can.

But men are all cowards, and when you do get a brave man the results sometimes are unpleasant. Supposing that he is poor and ignorant and that he has never had an opportunity of making an economic analysis, when certain parties are put forward as responsible parties—Kings and Presidents whom he has learned to abhor—supposing you get such a man who has sufficient consciousness to feel that it is an intolerable state of things, he is sufficiently ignorant to be taken in by the pretence that our Kings and Presidents are responsible parties, and has nevertheless sufficient bravery to make himself stronger than all society by saying, "I will pick my own life." He also says, "I do not care what happens to myself; I am willing to give my own life in order to keep what I want." There you have a very dangerous man.

Finally you get your man, like the man the other day in Spain. That man went and did one of the most unnatural things that a man could do—that is to say, he hurled a bomb at two young people on their wedding morn. That is an unnatural thing for any man to do; it is an uncomfortable thing for any brave man to do. It could not possibly happen in any ordinary society. That man's face was an intelligent and sympathetic face, but he went and deliberately threw that bomb and risked his own life. He killed twenty-three people and wounded a great many others, and he killed a certain number of horses.

Revolution Coming

I say deliberately I am very sorry for the horses, for the horses were in no sense responsible for the misery which that man, in his ignorance and blind way, considered to exist.

There you have practically what the Proletariat comes to.

The matter is simply the social system, showing that society is in very bad health and that society had better get a doctor. I am afraid I do not know how to get a cure, but it must be a very drastic cure.

You will notice that England preached very considerably to Russia, and that England set the example with many reforms which seemed quite practicable, and have been carried out in England. You will see that in Russia it is not possible to carry such reforms out without going through a sanguinary and useless revolution.

I am afraid that England and America are heading for exactly the same kind of revolution. After all our nineteenth century of what you call progress come the revelations which you got from Chicago the other day about tinned meat.

It is remarkable that all the sympathy has been with the consumers of the meat, and the revelations of the hideous and abominable conditions of life of those who tin that meat—conditions which drive them to such a state that they absolutely foul the meat—do not receive a share of the sympathy.

I can remember the tremendous society scare caused by the report that there was a leper in the meat market. The sensation produced was terrific for two days, and until the further revelations came that the leper was not in the meat market, but had only handled the mere refuse scraps of meat which were sold to very poor people. Immediately the general agitation died away, society said nothing more about it, and then society's conscience was at an end.

Can Do Nothing

I don't want to press the point, because matters have come to pass as a result of which the upper classes themselves can do nothing.

The only advantage they have in any studying of what is going on is that when the working classes take their destiny into their own hands the upper classes will understand and not force the working classes to cut their throats by insane, useless and stupid resistance to necessary reforms.

In America the great representatives of capital carry out their own wishes by force of arms and Pinkerton detectives. There is no doubt that there is a tremendous danger that the upper classes might take larger resources to buy gunpowder and begin a tremendous civil war. It seems to me yet to be inevitably coming.

The real thing we have to deal with is that it is impossible for the local and central governments to raise money enough to carry out the quite urgently necessary reforms for procuring the health and the safety of the community.

We are throwing away every year hundreds of millions of pounds of money—either where it is left, hundred millions of pounds sterling every year—in order that it might be absolutely wasted upon fashionable extravagance of every sort, and taken out of the country to Monte Carlo and all along the shores of the Mediterranean and in all the pleasure cities of Europe—wasted in a sickening and demoralizing manner. All that money is badly wanted at home to build good houses for the people, to sanitate those houses, to have good schoolmasters and splendid schools and libraries.

What we want is a better distribution of wealth and a better organization of industry. I would rather be a poor man in a rich city, where everybody else was happy, than be an enormously rich man in a city where everybody else was poor.

When you begin to realise that the misery you have got around you makes your own life miserable, then, perhaps, your own self-interest will induce you to do what my own preaching will never persuade you to do.
